Allies Open Assault At Anzio Beachhead

New Attack Threatens to Cut Off Nazi Divisions from Rear

NAPLES, May 23.—Allied troops launched an all-out offensive from the Anzio beachhead today under cover of a three-way bombardment by warships, heavy bombers and artillery, clamping 17 German divisions between their fire and the main Italian battle-front 20-odd miles to the southeast.

The Anzio offensive was synchronized with the 12-day push of the Fifth and Eighth armies, which simultaneously increased to a new pitch with a full scale assault by United Kingdom and Canadian troops on the northern end of the Hitler line and a developing American assault on Terracina.

A special announcement confirming Nazi reports of the Anzio offensive emphasized that the battle in Italy now had entered a new phase as forces 20 to 30 miles below Rome slashed into the German flank, threatening to cut off from the rear the 150,000 to 285,000 enemy troops hurled into the main struggle.

The first official report of the new offensive said no details of the fighting were available.

A Swiss broadcast said the beachhead offensive was "developing successfully" and had reached Lake Poiglano, indicating a gain of some five miles from the last known Allied positions at the southeast corner of the pocket and indicating a gap of about 15 miles between that area and the Terracina sector of the main battlefront.

ALLIES REINFORCED

(The German DNB News Agency said that preparatory to the beachhead offensive the Allies had landed "extensive" reinforcements

6,500 Tons of Bombs Rained on Continent

By WALTER CRONKITE
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin
Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

LONDON, May 23.—Powerful Allied air formations of all types of aircraft, including hundreds of American heavy bombers, lashed Germany and occupied France today after 1,000 R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. Lancasters and Halifaxes dropped about 4,480 tons of explosives on Dortmund, Brunswick and other targets along and behind the invasion coast.

The resumed bombardment of western Europe soared to record or near-record heights on its fifth straight day. In the first 12 hours, more than 3,000 Allied planes ranged over Germany and anti-invasion buffer areas, delivering at least 6,500 tons of bombs.

(The National Broadcasting Company reported from London that "the largest air fleets ever assembled are out over the continent today, and before the day is over history will be made.")

About 750 Flying Fortresses and Liberators smashed at German airdromes and rail yards in France and targets in western Germany which were not identified immediately.

BIGGEST FIGHTER FLEET

They were supported by more than 1,000 fighters escorting the big bombers, which also were supported by R.A.F. Mustangs sweeping nearby areas. It was the greatest fighter fleet ever dispatched in any theatre on a single operation.

The R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. opened the day with its heaviest blows in a month soon after midnight. At a cost of 35 planes, including

Four-Year Bacon Agreement Is Negotiated With Britain; Price Highest Prior to 1944

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the Commons last night that Canada had negotiated with the United Kingdom a four-year bacon agreement under which the United Kingdom would take from Canada in the next four years as much bacon as she did in the last four years.

Mr. Gardiner said the new agreement, which would cover 1944, 1945, 1946 and 1947, had not been signed and there might be some minor changes.

The price would be 78 cents a 100 pounds higher than that paid in any year prior to 1944, whether it was paid out of the Canadian treasury or by the United Kingdom, Mr. Gardiner said.

The present contract provides for a price paid by the United Kingdom of $22.50 a 100 pounds at seaboard, an increase of 75 cents over the price paid last year. Officials said they estimated that more than 50 per cent of the cost of bacon shipments to the United

Heated Words Mark Session Bank Committee

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, May 23.—An assertion there was nothing "unreal or illusionary" about the creation of money by the banks drew heated retorts from disciples of unorthodox monetary ideas at the Banking and Commerce Committee today.

John Blackmore, Social Credit leader, at one stage bluntly said to Graham Towers, governor of Bank of Canada, that he was "correct but exceedingly deceptive to the ordinary mind." "On the contrary," said Mr. Towers. A. G. Slaght (Lib., Parry Sound) insisted that bank deposits were "created." Mr. Towers said "Yes." He had just finished explaining that the modern "discovery" that loans create deposits which caused so much excitement, was at least 300 years old.

CROSS-QUESTIONING

The committee launched into its second week of inquiry into basic banking principles with Roy T. Graham (Lib., Swift Current) closely cross-questioning Mr. Towers on the functioning and practice of banking in view of various monetary reform criticisms.

Graham said he wanted to establish "elementary" truths about banking. When he asked Mr. Towers to explain that ratio of cash reserves to deposits, "assuming the members of the committee know nothing about it," G. G. McGeer (Lib.-Burrard) intervened. "Speak for yourself," remarked Mr. McGeer acidly.

Towers gave the explanation that the banks kept on hand in cash 10 per cent of their loans simply as a matter of practice. The Bank Act authorized the banks to accept deposits from the public and required

Fire Situation North Alberta Much Improved

While the forest fire situation in northeastern British Columbia appeared still dangerous Tuesday afternoon, the situation in Alberta has eased considerably, according to reports sent by V. W. Mitchell, government timber inspector at Peace River.

Received here b T. F. Blefgen provincial director of forestry, Mr. Mitchell's message states good progress is being made toward control measures, and it is hoped to gain complete control of fires in the north if present favorable weather continues.

Weather conditions in the fire region have been helpful to fire fighting, with partially overcast skies, a cool northwest wind and showers during the night over most fire areas.

On the British Columbia side of the north area, forestry officers are reported to be working against a "radio blackout" which has blocked communications in the Peace River Block. It is understood a remote-control radio receiver is being built near Prince George, in an effort to resume contacts.

ABOUT 75 FIRES

About 75 fires are reported in the B.C. timber stands, although these have been helped to some extent by recent rainfall.

Reports from Prince George indicated that Alberta officials have offered help in controlling Peace River outbreaks. Such a report indicated to B.C. forest service officers that the situation was serious. Complete details of fires will not be learned until radio communications are restored.

Municipal Housing Company Is Sought

Creation of a civic housing company for the purpose of building low-cost modern homes either for rental or sale is sought in a notice of motion given Monday night at city council meeting by Ald H. D. Ainlay.

In his notice of motion, which will come before council for discussion at the next regular meeting, Ald. Ainlay said that as the federal government has intimated it will loan up to 90 per cent of the cost of home construction it would be advisable for city council to establish a housing committee to investigate and report on the advisability of setting up a municipal housing company to build low-cost houses for rental or sale.

He also gave notice of motion that as the civic authorities had broken faith with the householders in the flats in regard to the dump at the incinerator that the council order the dump removed to another site.

King Tells Applauding House Of His Pride In Citizenship And Unity of British Empire

By JAMES McCOOK

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who Sunday night returned from the conference of Empire Prime Ministers at London, said before an applauding Commons yesterday that he was "never more proud to be a Canadian than I am at this hour and I was never more proud to be a citizen of the British Commonwealth.

Mr. King said the conference not only was a success in representing unity of purpose, feeling and action, but also in representing in a symbolic way the complete unity of the British Commonwealth of Nations and its high purpose at this time.

He could not say there were any material differences between the prime ministers on any question. There were shades of opinion, and points of view that were perhaps different arising out of the different geographical positions of the different Commonwealth nations. But there was no difficulty in arriving at a "convergence of view with respect to all matters that were discussed."

COMMON SENTIMENTS

Mr. King said that at the conference he had given expression to feelings and sentiments he believed to be held in common in Canada.

In the United Kingdom he had been able to "Gain exceptional information from the inside." He said he felt more reassured than he had ever felt as to the ca-

Police Wage Scale Ratified; Firemen May Request Board

City council Monday night ratified a settlement between the Edmonton Police Association and the city commissioners on wages and working conditions for 1944, and accepted the recommendation of the commissioners, that as negotiations with the executive of the Fire-Fighters' Union No. 209 has failed to bring about agreement, that "if the firemen wish to apply for a provincial board of conciliation the city place no obstacle in the way of this means of settlement of the dispute."

Rejecting the wage increase offered by city council to the members of the city's fire brigade the executive of the firemen's union point out that its members consider the increases insufficient and claim that it does not place wages paid here on an equal basis with the average wages paid in other western cities.

The commissioners in their report to council point out that "inasmuch as we have settled with all the other civic unions in the broad basis of the Calgary award we believe that no further adjustment can be offered the firemen."

Allies Launch New Offensive At Beachhead

on the Netuno coast under cover of artificial fog in the last few days.

Airmen of the great Allied fleet which ranged over the beachhead lines and environs, blasting German concentrations of every kind ahead of the Allied land forces, indicated that the main weight of the push was directed southeastward toward the rear of German forces defending themselves against heavy blows on the Terracina-Piedmonte front.

After nearly three months of relative inactivity, the Allies went into action early this morning after Allied warships steamed in to shell the German lines. The beachhead army struck only one day after it became evident that all 17 German divisions below Rome had been committed to the main battle line, leaving to comparatively light forces the task of containing the Beachhead.

POWERFUL SUPPORT

Swarms of Allied heavy and medium bombers and other planes gave the new offensive powerful support with devastating assaults on German concentrations and strong points over a wide area.

Light fighter-bombers provided the aerial spearhead for the Anzio blow, smashing at a large force of German troops along an eight-mile stretch of a dry river bed near the trunk railway in the Cisterna area.

Inside an arc radiating 50-miles around Rome, the four-engined craft dropped their big loads of heavy fragmentation bombs on supply dumps and troop concentrations. They encountered no German air opposition and only slight anti-aircraft fire.

Low-flying Bostons showered the enemy with fragmentation and smoke bombs. Warhawks flying at higher levels swooped in behind the Bostons and planted their own bombs on points which the light bombers had missed.

Fortresses hit the Avezzano road junction and various German troop concentrations, while Liberators attacked widespread targets, including troop concentrations near Nemi and Marino.

LOCATION OF WEDGE

Though first reports did not indicate the location of the Eighth Army's wedge, it was believed somewhere in the Liri Valley between Pontecorvo, where Canadian troops yesterday seized a vital hill outside the town and Piedimonte, four miles west of Cassino.

Polish elements of the Eighth Army with British support were reported closing in on Piedimonte, northern anchor of the Hitler line, from three sides and gradually squeezing the Germans from their strong natural defences.

In the south, American units of the Fifth Army, stalled temporarily in their drive along the coast toward Terracina by a strongly-reinforced counter attack, fanned out through unfordable terrain to the north and seized a village and six mountain peaks.

REACH TUNNEL

The Americans also broke through to the southern mouth of a tunnel running 4½ miles under a mountain range to the Pontine marshes northwest of Terradina. One hundred prisoners were captured in the tunnel.

Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, Allied commander in Italy, reported in his daily communique that the battle for Italy was continuing "relentlessly."

"In the mountains in the coastal sector, troops of the Fifth Army are thrusting forward and have captured more important hill features," the brief bulletin said.

PREPARE ASSAULT

American forces were believed preparing for a full-scale assault on Terracina, southern anchor of the new German defence line to which the enemy retired after abandoning the southern half of the original Hitler line.

Patrols penetrated into Terracina yesterday, but later were thrown back two to three miles to the east when the Germans counter-attacked strongly with newly arrived reinforcements.

Other American troops extended their front seven to nine miles north and northeast of Terracina.

The reinforced Germans threw strong tank forces into a counter-attack against American and French forces at Mt. Leucio, just below the Liri river in the centre of the line. Though they forced a slight Allied withdrawal on the flanks, the Germans failed to penetrate the Allied positions and San Leucio's summit remained firmly in Allied hands.

POSSIBLE ADVANCE

An official spokesman said Eighth Army forces on the Adriatic front had suffered some casualties from mines, possibly indicating an advance along the seacoast.

Up to 750 American heavy bombers joined Allied medium and fighter bombers yesterday in supporting the ground forces. Among targets raided were Avezzano and Valmontone, key communications centres between Rome and the front and believed two of the anchors of the next German defence line.

The big four-engined bombers in some cases went after troop concentrations and elsewhere raided railroad yards, airbases and other military installations. R.A.F. Wellingtons followed through last night with attacks on Valmontone, Ferentino and adjacent roads.

Five planes were lost in 2,150 sorties. Of 20 enemy planes sighted over the battle area, one was shot down.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any pain or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick Drug Stores or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally as a liquid, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money of Morrison Field, Florida. His home towns are Claude, Texas, and Palm Beach, Florida.

The plane itself has quite a history. It has been used by General George Marshall on some of his trips to far flung war fronts, and is one of the A.T.C. ships used by officials who accompanied President Roosevelt to the Casa Blanca and Teheran conferences.

The flight from Washington to Edmonton was made in about 11 hours, with one stop at Minneapolis.

Arriving in Fairbanks, Sunday, Vice-president Wallace and party spent the afternoon and evening at the residence of Colonel Russell Keillor and staff.

IMPRESSED BY A.T.C.

Mr. Wallace was very favorably impressed with the manner in which the Air Transport Command is meeting its present responsibilities, and with the manner in which it is going about making preparations for its responsibilities in the future.

The vice-president spent part of the day at the University of Alaska where he was particularly interested in the University Agricultural Research on its experimental farm. He spent some time discussing the problems of Arctic farming with Dr. Charles E. Bunnell, president of the university and Dean George Gasser who is in charge of its agricultural program.

The party also visited the farthest north dairy farm, located just outside Fairbanks, where Mr. Wallace discussed agriculture with the owner.

The vice-president left Fairbanks confident in the ability of Alaska to co-ordinate its development with the economy in the United States on the basis of mutual advantage.

five Canadian aircraft. Bomber Command's heavies hammered Germany's Ruhr steel centre of Dortmund and the aircraft centre of Brunswick, 120 miles west of Berlin.

Other British bombers hit the French rail centres at Orleans and Le Mans southwest of Paris, and speedy Mosquitoes jabbed at the German chemical centre of Ludwigshafen and an air field in Belgium.

CANADIAN ATTACKS

R.C.A.F. Halifaxes formed the bulk of the force which made a concentrated attack on the railway centre of Le Mans and other Canadian heavy craft joined in the assaults on Dortmund and Orleans.

Yesterday, R.C.A.F. fighters and fighter-bombers of the 2nd Tactical Force destroyed six enemy aircraft in attacks on enemy communications, airfields and other military targets. Supply trains and locomotives were damaged, Canadian headquarters reported.

Although Dortmund and Brunswick are major industrial cities, the R.A.F. attacks probably were designed primarily to lighten the stranglehold of the rail system of western Europe.

WEATHER CLOUDY

The weather over the Straits, fair during the morning, began deteriorating around noon, with heavy clouds moving in and rain beginning.

The first bomber crewmen returning from western Germany said the continent was covered by a solid cloud blanket, forcing them to use the special overcast bombing technique. Early reports said the bombers did not encounter a single German fighter, and anti-aircraft fire was spotty.

Eight Men, Woman Are Found Guilty In Polygamy Case

SALT LAKE CITY, May 23—(AP)—The "fundamentalist" cult, which believes in plural marriages, received a setback in the courts yesterday when eight men and a woman were convicted of federal charges. They will be sentenced Thursday. Six defendants were convicted on Mann Act charges and three were held guilty in kidnapping charges. The nine, all cult members, were among 46 persons arrested in March by federal and state officers. Last Saturday, 15 Salt Lake City men were convicted of unlawful cohabitation with 35 women not legally their wives.

Fix Ceiling Prices On Retail Goods Bought For Resale

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—Ceiling prices for the sale of goods purchased at retail for resale have been established by an order which becomes effective June 1, D. C. Burton, administrator of retail trade for the Prices Board, announced last night.

The order stipulates that if a person buys any goods from a retailer for resale the maximum price at which he may sell these goods must be the price he paid plus the discount, if any, which the retailer might have allowed. Hence, the buyer's resale price must not exceed the seller's ceiling price.

On all purchases of goods from a retailer for resale the buyer must obtain a sales invoice giving details of the transaction.

$20 monthly to all first class constables and ranks above that of first class constable. The increase is given in lieu of the present cost-of-living bonus of $8.65 now being paid. The $20 increase will be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1944.

To personnel below the rank of first class constable the monthly increase will be $18.50 instead of the $8.65 cost-of-living bonus now paid. Both the wage increases will be included in the basic wage rate.

In addition to the wage increases it was agreed that for the purposes of workmen's compensation a policeman in full uniform will be assumed to be on duty; that police court fees, amounting as a rule to about $2,000 annually, be applied to the credit of the police pension fund.

GRANT VACATIONS

It was agreed also that, as policemen do not get any statutory holidays, a vacation of three weeks be granted to all policemen after three years' service. This was agreed to by the commissioners on the understanding that it will not be effective until the manpower situation improves.

It was agreed also that full pay be granted to anyone filling an acting position. This was agreed to by the commissioners except that no one will get any additional pay for the first three weeks, which is the equivalent to the usual period.

Also agreed to was the recommendation that the present regulation be amended to provide that trail coats and rain coats be issued every three years, and peak caps each year, and that the plain clothes allowance be increased from $100 to $120.

Health Insurance Gets Endorsation Of Medical Assn.

TORONTO, May 23.—(CP)—The executive committee of the Canadian Medical Association at the 7th annual meeting here last night endorsed, for the third successive year, the principle of contributory health insurance as decided upon by the parliamentary committee on social security.

Any form of state medicine which would transform the medical profession into a "salaried service" was vetoed.

Health insurance was the main topic before the conferences being attended by delegates from coast to coast and scheduled to continue to Friday. The regular bodies of delegates from the C.M.A. will confer until the end of the week.

LONDON, May 23—The control tower at a German night fighter station early today flashed on a green light, meaning "It's okay to come in," and Flying Officer B. I. Crofts, of the R.A.F. went in—with the bomb bay doors of his Mosquito bomber wide open.

The embarrassed Nazi signalman realized his mistake and switched on his red lights, advising the R.A.F. bomber to go away.

Crofts, a night intruder pilot from Brisbane, Australia, ignored the advice and laid his 500-pound bombs squarely across the intersection of the field's runways.

The Germans finally switched off all their lights and started shooting, but by that time Crofts was on his way home.

to retain not less than five per cent on hand in cash. Though the banks could loan or invest 95 per cent of their deposits, they were only short at 90 per cent as a matter of practice.

BANKS LIMITED

When Mr. Graham suggested there was nothing unreal about the saying that "loans create deposits," Mr. Towers agreed and said this fact should have been discovered 300 years ago. "That is true," he said, "but the banks cannot expand their loans unless the customer is willing to leave the funds on deposit. So the banks are limited by the amount the public is willing to leave on deposit."

This reference to the fact that a limiting factor exists in the creation of new deposits led Mr. Blackmore to ask what a deposit is. He said there were two kinds; cash that was placed in a bank account and funds that were borrowed from a bank. He continued "there is developing in this committee the widest kind of confusion." Towers would not accept the claim there were two kinds of deposits as the Social Credit leader argued.

Mr. Towers put on record the deposits, loans and investments of the chartered banks at the end of 1943. His figures showed savings deposits amounted to $1,348,000,000, demand deposits at $1,697,000,000 or total deposits of $4,358,000,000. On the loans and investment side, loans to the public were $1,100,000,000, call loans $91,000,000 and bank holdings of securities $2,913,000,000.

May Force Nazis Withdraw North

By EDWARD W. BEATTIE

LONDON, May 23—Military observers saw strong indications tonight that Marshal Kesselring would be forced soon to withdraw north of Rome and eventually to abandon all Italy south of the Po Valley to the Allies.

This possibility is important from three standpoints—for its military implications, for its political possibilities and for its effect on morale inside Germany.

The Volkischer Beobachter's article severely mentioned such a step and stated Kesselring would forfeit ground if necessary, to protect his reserves and admits the possibility that a line tied to the Po or to the foothills of the Alps is the most striking sign that a big German withdrawal is being contemplated. Another lies in the disposition of Kesselring's troops as the battle enters its second phase.

Tito's Partisans Kill 200 German, Chetnik Soldiers

LONDON, May 23—(AP)—Marshal Josip Broz (Tito) announced today that his Yugoslav partisans have killed more than 200 Germans and Chetniks in fighting on a 55-mile front extending from the vicinity of Nevesinje, 15 miles southeast of Mostar in Nercegovina, to Gacko and south to Trebinje.

Heavy losses said to have been caused the enemy when Tito's forces blew up two trains on the Zagreb-Belgrade line near Velka Gorica.

Report Allies Using Big Tanks in Italy

LONDON, May 23.—(CP)—The Allies are using tanks weighing between 60 and 70 tons in the battle of Italy, a German report claimed last night. "The battle in Italy is raging at an unslackened pace," a German broadcast said. Several hundreds of Allied tanks weighing between 50 and 70 tons each have been thrown into the battle."

Raise $15,000

WINNIPEG, May 23. — (CP) — Manitoba Junior Red Cross Society presented a cheque for $15,000 to the National Red Cross at the annual conference of juniors here on Saturday, it was announced yesterday. Jean E. Brown, national director of the Junior Red Cross, accepted the cheque.

Eagles Order Gives Cheque To Secretary

The tenth annual banquet of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, Edmonton Aerie, at the Masonic Temple, Monday, was highlighted by the presentation of a cheque for $100 to Worthy Secretary W. N. "Bill" Watkins. The presentation made by E. E. Arlidge was "for sacrifice, and services during his 17 years as secretary."

The 12 original members of the Aerie who still belong to the Order are: W. McLeod, H. C. B. Gerrard, W. Cromrie, J. Frankland, E. Eyman, J. Hunter, E. L. Davey, C. J. Miller, J. Rushton, G. G. Von-Fleet, J. Farquhar and G. Brown.

The Rev. Dr. A. K. McMinn, minister of McDougall United church and guest speaker of the banquet, said: "The tendency at present is for the home to degenerate." He proposed the toast to "Mother."

"We have 50 members on active service, some overseas, some in Canada. We want to build up our Order to a better and bigger one for those boys when they come back," stated President S. A. Warren, in his opening remarks. Our Mother's Day program is to pay respect to our mothers. Our mothers used to say, "Son, be a good boy."

Mrs. A. S. Bastian of Cloverdale was presented with a bouquet of pink carnations. She was honored as "Mother" for the occasion.

A silver cup for membership was observed in tribute to "Harry" Brown, member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles of Edmonton for approximately 15 years, and a C.N.R. conductor here, who died Monday afternoon.

A musical program was put on by three well known city artists, Miss Berneice McBeth and J. A. Nadeau, who sang a number of well known selections, and William Ness, who sang Scottish songs and gave several Scottish characterizations. Mrs. H. A. Love accompanied him at the piano.

The centrepiece of the head table was a huge golden eagle, symbol of the Order, with two scales representing the balance of justice.

AT HEAD TABLE

Seated at this table were: Dr. and Mrs. McMinn; President and Mrs. Warren; past president and Mrs. W. Van Kleek; vice-president and Mrs. F. Tymko; treasurer L. E. Stretton; secretary and Mrs. Watkins; chaplain and Mrs. S. L. War; conductor and Mrs. F. Fallis; inside guard and Mrs. E. E. Davey and Mrs. Bastion.

Trustees present were Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Riley and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Van Kleek. The banquet was followed by dancing.

Official Canadian First War History Not Yet Complete

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—Completion of the eight volumes of the official Canadian history of the First Great War "depends on the assignments given the director of the series," Brigadier A. G. Fallis, Ottawa in connection with the current war," according to a return tabled in the House yesterday for John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre). One officer and two other ranks still were working on the compilation of the official history, the return added.

As for the present war, the return said that historical officers were attached to every division engaged in operations with narrators employed for negotiations in Canada and the American continent.

$17,758,291 Spent By Govt. Moving West's Feed Grain

OTTAWA, May 24.—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said in the Commons last night that $17,758,291 was spent by the government last year on the movement of feed grain from the prairie provinces to eastern Canada and to the Pacific Coast.

Answering questions from opposition benches, Mr. Gardiner said that $8,000,000 had been originally set aside for freight assistance on the movement of the grains, but the amount was greatly over-expended and new sums had to be allotted.

This year the government was setting $18,500,000 aside for freight assistance.

Air Ministry Denies Report On Shootings

LONDON, May 23.—(CP)—The Air Ministry said tonight that a story carried today by a London newspaper reporting that the German guards at Stalag Luft III ran riot and shot Allied Air Force officers is "without foundation."

The Air Ministry said that while insufficient information is at present available to issue a further statement on the circumstances in which 47 Air Force officers, including six Canadians, were killed, it can be stated "that nothing of the nature described in this report took place in the camp in question."

A Stockholm dispatch to the Daily Express said a detailed account of the killing of the prisoners in March showed the "massacre . . . did not take place in a clash between prisoners and guards but was carried out by groups of guards who lost their heads and shot prisoners haphazardly in barracks, courtyards and workshops."

The Express correspondent, B. D. Masterman, said British pilots who escaped and reached Sweden gave eye-witness accounts of the affair on which an official report, based on their statements, is expected within a few days.

Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said in the House of Commons he had asked the British minister at Stockholm for full information concerning the shooting.

Iowa Experiences Worst Floods in Last Forty Years

DES MOINES, May 23—(AP)—The worst floods in 40 years swept through Central and Southeastern Iowa yesterday and another torrent was said the end was still more than a week away.

The 10th death in five days of tornadoes and floods was reported but not definitely established.

Five persons died Thursday and Friday and four drowned Sunday.

Damage has been occurring so rapidly there has been no opportunity for a state-wide estimate of the loss, but the storms have covered a belt equal to more than half the area of the state and extending from the northwest to the southeast.

Aircraft Crashes In Quebec Village, 4 Airmen Killed

POINTE AU PIC, Que., May 23.—(CP)—The four occupants of a training plane were killed today when the aircraft crashed onto a street of this lower St. Lawrence village. No residents of the village were injured.

The plane crashed close to the village church but did not strike the church or any buildings of the village. Aldred Bergeron, whose home is close to the scene of the crash, said that he believed the plane had "exploded" in the air before striking the street.

Branch Work in the Y.M.C.A.

"THE HOME, perhaps, is the strongest single influence in the life of a child. Some students of child psychology claim that 90 per cent. of the forces that eventually determine character are exerted at this period of life." This truth makes branch work of the 'Y' most valuable and most productive, because it is an effort to bring the 'Y' closer to the home and closer to the community in which the child lives. All too often even the Central Association is far too remote from the needs of the individual. Nor is it feasible for the downtown organization to adapt itself to the requirements of every community.

"This the branch organization is able to do readily, because it is primarily concerned with the community which it is privileged to serve. Both parents and children find it natural to give the same support and loyalty as that displayed in the home and school. Voluntary leadership is enthusiastically offered because parents see the actual results of the 'Y' program. Moreover, it means that the boy and girl can build his or her daily routine around the branch 'Y'. You are in contact with him six days out of the week instead of probably only one. The net result is that the 'Y' comes first in the child's mind when it comes to conflicting loyalties, instead of having to compete with all the other community influences that are bound to be stronger stimuli when the association is more remote.

"With all the advances in educational and cultural trends, the Y.M.C.A. must find its place. During the past hundred years, it has done that magnificently. Branch 'Y' programs are the next step. The child will never be at home in the 'Y', if he is not in the 'Y' at home.

Capt. Busk-Wood

Hero of Actions at Sea, C.P. Steamships Capt. Now Retiring on Pension

MONTREAL, May 23.—(Passed by Censor)—With one Nazi submarine to his credit from his time as master of the Duchess of Bedford and the proud record of keeping all guns firing for an hour after the centre of another ship he later commanded became a raging interno before she sank, Capt. W. G. Busk-Wood, O.B.E., R.D., R.N.R., has retired under the pension regulations of Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited, it has been announced here. He had been with the C.P.S.L. since 1910 except for seven years on Admiralty service from May of 1913 to March of 1920.

In his second Canadian Pacific command of this war, her name omitted for security reasons, Capt. Busk-Wood was one of 12 men honored for heroic action, with the official London Gazette terming his conduct "intrepid and resourcefully efficient" when at least five Focke-Wolfs, flying at from 12,000 to 18,000 feet, bombed and sank the liner. Two others of the ship's company were made Officers of the Order of the British Empire, three were awarded British Empire medals and six were commended for bravery on this occasion.

The official report of the gallant craft's dying hours tells a gripping story of fire fighters continuing their hopeless battle until driven overside by the flames, of engine and boiler room crews standing fast with death at their elbows and of one man braving terrible burns to make a human bridge of his body for the his mates when a companion ladder was blown away. One of the commendations for bravery was posthumously made—to a troop deck officer who died performing his duty to the last.

58 DECORATIONS

For Capt. Busk-Wood the commendation for bravery in this action followed the O.B.E. he had won for the "Bedford's" sinking of a German U-boat thereby marking the second time his name had been inscribed on the Canadian Pacific's honor roll of the sea for World War II. There now are 58 decorations and mentions in despatches on this list which includes six others who have earned double distinction like Capt. Busk-Wood, with two of them having won their second honors at the same as he did.

The stalwart ship's master who has now entered retirement he so richly deserves was one of the best known of peacetime skippers in the world of ocean travel with his commands before the war including the Empress of Britain, which he took around the world in 1938, the Egress of Australia, two Duchesses —the Atholl and the Bedford— the Montcalm and the Beaverhill, his first command in 1934.

All of these ships and 14 others were included in the total of 20 Canadian Pacific ocean liners and British Columbia Coast Service vessels taken over by the Admiralty since the outbreak of war and of which nine have been announced as lost.

The 12-man entry from the ship sunk by the deadly FW's is not the only one given out for the first time in the newest list of honors for there are five others never announced before. These include one from an action which saved the Duchess of York when volunteers removed a 500-pound bomb which had pierced deep in the heart of the ship and four from the sinking of the Empress of Canada by an Italian sub.

Leading all the releases on late awards for its shining record of rare courage, however, is the story of Capt. Busk-Wood's second ship which went down as a fighting lady should, still striking back at the enemy long after she was struck amidships by a bomb which "shook her as though she were a rat in a terrier's teeth."

THOSE DECORATED

In that action the O.B.E.'s went to Chief Officer Stanley Walter Keay and Chief Engineer Officer Ernest Edward Vick, the British Empire Medals to Boatswain Henry William Knight, Third Butcher Archibald Hughes and Able Seaman Laurence Richardson and the commendations for bravery to Capt. Busk-Wood, Purser Graham Crawford, Second Officer Richard James Barlow, Fifth Engineer Officer Montague Coundley, Second Engineer Officer John Kerr, First Officer Robert McKillop, M.B.E., and Troop Deck Officer Richard Francis Legendre Dennis (posthumous).

The London Gazette says Chief Officer Keay's O.B.E. was for "outstanding courage, organzing ability and leadership in fire-fighting at sea—he fought on till forced from his post by flames", and, of Chief Engineer Officer Vick's right to the same decoration, it reports that "he stood by his engine and boiler rooms through the direliest danger. His whole staff fought as one with faultless efficiency and he was among the last to leave the burning ship."

Capt. Busk-Wood's own report of Chief Engineer Officer Vick stated that he was worthy of consideration "if only for the reason that through his unitiring efforts to make his department 100 per cent it proved to be in this crisis not less than that by even one per cent."

BRIDGE OF BODY

Third Butcher Hughes was the one who made a bridge of his body in the holocaust and the official version of this states "his body, his face and his feet were badly burned, but he stayed firm and unflinching until all of his mates had clambered upon his shoulders to safety."

Troop Deck Officer Dennis was the one whose commendation was posthumously awarded, the London Gazette reports, adding "he died after heroically performing his duty to the last."

Purser Crawford was commended in the official citation for "saving valuable papers though his office had been wrecked and he himself badly injured" and Capt. Busk-Wood's report paid tribute to "the purser's forethought, which with able cooperation between him and his staff resulted in the saving of some vital and useful documents, though his offices and places were in a shambles and he himself was badly knocked about."

First Officer McKillop was one of the two others who earned official recognition for the second time in this action. The M.B.E. he had won earlier was "for courage of the coolest and most self-forgetting kinw when he was one of the Canadian Pacific crew who removed and flung overboard an unexploded bomb which had lodged deep in the vessel (Duchess of York)." In the sinking by the Focke-Wolfs First Officer McKillop was specially mentioned in Capt. Busk-Wood's report which stated "the first officer with a volunteer naval boat crew (from an escort frigate) searched the waters adjacent to the ship long after darkness had set in for any likely survivors."

EFFICIENT IN RESCUE

Able Seaman Richardson was the other man whose honors in this action were his second for he had helped on the "York" earlier with First Officer McKillop, to remove the bomb which pierced the decks. In winning his second award, the B.E.M., this seaman was "outstandingly efficient in rescue operations and his exemplary conduct proved a splendid example to all."

Capt. Busk-Wood's own report to the owners on the sinking of the ship says that when the first Focke-Wolf was sighted "fire was immediately opened but even then the 12-pounder and three-inch ammunition was bearing very short of the target which I would conservatively place at a height of some 15,000 feet."

When the stick of bombs hit the ship admidships it cut all communications between the bridge and other parts of the ship. "The water system was definitely wrecked," the captain writes, "and although every effort was made to control the fire which resulted from these bombs it quickly gained on us, the centre of the ship becoming a raging inferno. As five of my lifeboats were burning furiously I reported conditions to the senior officer of escort who ordered me to abandon ship. However, we hung on, continuing to use our armament for approximately an hour."

COUNTED 5 PLANES

Continuing with the story of the loss of the proud company vessel the now-retired master said "as is usual there is conflicting evidence of the number of planes attacking the ship but I definitely counted five in the sky at one time. . . The second plane to come over appeared to me to be about 18,000 feet up while the third was somewhere in the neighborhood of between 12,000 and 14,000 feet."

The decorations from other actions released in the latest list included the award of Lloyds Medal for gallantry at sea announced as having gone to Chief Officer R. V. Burns, G.M., for the same action in which he won the George Medal as the leader in removing the 500-pound bomb from the "York".

The four from the "Canada" not previously listed were headed by Boatswain G. Watson, awarded the British Empire Medal in this action, to become still another who won double distinction for he was mentioned in despatches earlier "for services in the Duchess of Atholl at Diego Suarez, Madagascar, in September, 1942."

The other three "Canada" men honored, all of them mentioned in despatches, were Fifth Officer F. J. Bullock, Surgeon Dr. C. P. Millar, and Purser J. M. Jones.

When Boatswain Watson was honored in the "Canada's" sinking it made him the second man who had sailed on the "Atholl" in wartime to be honored twice, for the master, Capt. H. A. Moore, O.B.E., R.D., R.N.R., had won mention in despatches for the Diega Suarez affair and later was made an O.B.E. in another action.

TWICE HONORED

The seventh man to be twice honored in this war for sea service won his decorations in the fighting service of the Royal Navy. He was the late Lt. Cmdr. H. M. C. Sanders, R.N.R., who had both the Distinguished Service Cross and the Distinguished Service Order and who was killed in action on the corvette H.M.S. Gladiolus.

Lt. Cmdr' Sanders' decoration was one of six service decorations won by former Canadian Pacific sailors from among the many who went direct to the navy at the outbreak of war. The remainder of the company's seagoing personnel gave their services for the desperately dangerous job of convoy and trooping work, with the last count showing 4,488 of them on Admiralty service, 1,010 serving on "Mont" ships converted to armed cruisers and 103 in shore staff posts.

OUTSTANDING EXAMPLE

Capt Busk-Wood with his four years put in at a time when he was approaching the retirement age is an outstanding example of the type of men who have shouldered the heavy and vital burden of supplying the fighting fronts. He did not leave without a farewell word for all those who shared the common peril of the sea in wartime.

In closing his report on his last command Capt. Busk-Wood said he could go on naming many for heroic action but "I will have to be content with stating that I feel justly proud of the service which was given me by the men not only in my last command but those others with whom it has been my pleasure to operate."

Company ships in which he sailed over the years included the Lake Manitoba, in which he started as fourth officer in 1910; Montcalm, the first Empress of Britain, Monmouth, Mantford, Montrose, Montreal, Mount Royal, Minnedosa, Metagama, Empress of India, Empress of France, Melita, Marglen, in which he became chief officer for the first time in 1924; the second Empress of Britain, in which he became staff captain for the first time in 1933; Beaverhill, Montcalm, Duchess of Atholl and Duchess of Bedford.

In his world cruise of 1928 he took the "Britain" in to Sydney, Australia, the first time the great "Down Under" port had been included in the globe-girding journey of the flagship.

Premier King Tells of Pride In Citizenship

tainty of ultimate victory, but he also felt more deeply than ever that the struggle was to be greater and more difficult than many began to comprehend.

Mr. King said he did not believe the war would end the conflict between different classes and races of men. The enemy of today must be completely destroyed, but forces of evil had been let loose which it would be difficult to bring to bay.

GREATEST WORK AHEAD

"We must never lose sight of the fact that our greatest work perhaps still lies ahead in seeking to trample under foot and destroy the dragon that today is seeking to destroy all mankind," he said.

Mr. King thanked the house for the welcome given him.

In the United Kingdom he had received a welcome from all the people of the United Kingdom from the King and Queen to those engaged in humble but essential tasks.

The welcome was a welcome to the representative of the people of Canada, he said. His visit made it possible for him to realize how deeply the people of the United Kingdom felt towards Canadians. Words could not express the warmth of the tributes to Canada he had heard and to the Canadian war effort.

He said the conference was secret and care had to be taken in speaking of it, for the enemy would seek to piece together various statements which might be made.

He said he was proud to say that the conference proceedings had been marked by a "unanimity and determination it would be impossible to excel.

Mr. King said Prime Minister Churchill had said the conference would be looked back upon as one of the most important minestones in the history of the Commonwealth.

"If my part in the conference was satisfactory it was due to the fact I was able to express the feelings which I think are those of the people in this house and in the dominion," said Mr. King. Things held in common were so much greater than things held divided.

"When I spoke I spoke for all parties and for the people of Canada as a whole," he said.

Mr. King said he gained "excellent information" on affairs in Europe. He obtained the information from the "highest" official.

"I have seen something of the tremendous development for the great task which may come at any moment," he said.

SEES LONG STRUGGLE

"I feel more certain than at any time in the ultimate outcome. The struggle is going to be great and more difficult than we can possibly believe. It will be longer than we perhaps had imagined, but there can be no doubt of the final outcome.

"It will be the greatest struggle and conflict that ever took place in the history of the world."

When the time came there might be certain moments of concern, but there was no doubt of the final success.

Mr. King said the unanimity of agreement at [illegible] cord on the opinion that the enemy "must be completely destroyed."

He said that he was impressed "more than ever before that Britain holds the gates of freedom of the world."

DOMINIONS' AID VITAL

He said he was impressed also that had it not been for the help of the Dominions Britain might not have been able to hold open the gates.

He said if those gates were ever allowed to close "then there will be no more freedom in the world."

He spoke of the pride he felt when he visited members of the Canadian armed forces and especially when he saw "what they meant to the people of Britain."

He said the British people not only paid tribute to Canada's manpower, but also to her supply of food and material.

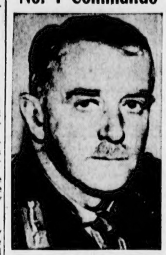

Mr. King concluded amid lusty desk-thumping from all sides: "I have never been so proud to be a Canadian as I am at this hour."

King to Discuss Conference Later

OTTAWA, May 23—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said yesterday in the Commons that he would be prepared in about a "fortnight" to discuss his stay in the recent conference of empire prime ministers, and other matters that fell under the department of external affairs.

Answering Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader, Mr. King said he had many things to deal with before he could discuss the war estimates of the external affairs department.

Work had piled up while he was in London and there were matters connected with the conference which had to be dealt with.

Mr. King said he hoped there would be no general discussion on external affairs until the civil estimates of the department were being examined.

Extend Labor Code To Saskatchewan

OTTAWA, May 23—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell announced yesterday in the Commons that the new federal labor code has been extended to cover all industries within the jurisdiction of the Saskatchewan government.

(The code has already been extended to cover industries within the jurisdiction of British Columbia, Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario and New Brunswick. Negotiations with the other provinces are under way.)

Mr. Mitchell tabled an agreement between the Dominion and Saskatchewan covering the extension and also an order-in-council appointing the Saskatchewan Wartime Labor Relations Board.

Labor Minister Parker will be chairman of the Saskatchewan board and G. A. Scott, director of the provincial labor branch, will be vice-chairman.

High Farm Income After War Urged

OTTAWA, May 23—(CP)—Anthony Hlynka (S.C., Vegreville) said last night in the Commons that the federal government should assure farmers a high income after the war. The income of the farmer had risen during the war, but the government had not indicated how it planned to keep up the income or to raise it.

Mr. Hlynka said he favored subsidies to the consumer and the producer. However, he felt a fair price should be set on farm products, with subsidies being used for purposes of adjustment.

C. K. Johnston (S.C., Bow River) said farmers like business men filling war contracts should be guaranteed the cost of production plus a reasonable profit.

Mr. Johnston said farmers were complaining about the unsatisfactory conditions of marketing hogs in Western Canada.

The government might solve the problem by taking possession of the hogs when they were brought to market. The government could arrange to have the hogs fed until they were slaughtered. This would take the possibility of loss off the shoulders of the farmers.

A LINK BETWEEN GREAT NATIONS . . .

EVERY single one of us wants a just and lasting peace.

But, one of the first essentials to a lasting peace is continued understanding and unity between the present great comrades-in-arms . . . Britain and the United States. Canada is the link between these two great nations . . . a member of the British Commonwealth and the long, inseparable friend of the U. S. A.

Yes, we, of Canada, know both these peoples . . . like them both so well that we are the link that joins . . . the bond of understanding. This is our natural birthright . . . let us serve it well.

In our hearts is the same concept of freedom!

IT is only natural that Canadians, Americans and Englishmen share the same concept of freedom, for we also share one of the earliest defenders of the freedoms we are fighting for today. ✣ He was a Calvert, an enlightened English statesman and founder of colonies off Canada's shore and in Maryland. ✣ So, centuries ago, a Calvert forged a link which has strengthened throughout the years—joining together for the good of mankind the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States of America. ✣ In statesmanship and wisdom the Calvert family were far ahead of their age. ✣ In 1638 Calvert's son and successor, carrying on the democratic Calvert tradition, fined a man of his own faith five hundred pounds of tobacco for "willifying and profaning another's religion". ✣ Thus a man's freedom to worship as he pleases was established in the New World by a Calvert.

Mischievous Demagogues

Henri Bourassa, 77-year old French-Canadian nationalist leader, tells a rally of the Bloc Populaire that in the next general election French-Canadians who cannot vote for a Bloc candidate should vote for the C.C.F.

Mr. Bourassa's capacity for political mischief does not seem to have declined with the years. And in this advice he numbers himself, along with Duplessis and Chaloult, among the many obstacles Premier Godbout must face in his heroic efforts to raise the social and economic standards of Quebec.

Bourassa was the man who led the movement in 1911 that defeated Sir Wilfrid Laurier by weakening Sir Wilfrid's representation from that province. Although reciprocity was the issue in the eight English-speaking provinces, Bourassa campaigned to blacken Laurier and the Liberals as pro-British agents who would thrust Canada into war to preserve the British Empire and its free institutions.

As a rabid isolationist, appealing to the racial and religious prejudices of French-Canadians, his campaign of violent abuse had some success. The practical result, from his standpoint, was seen in his later shameless confession that he had received $250,000 from the Tory Party in that campaign to defeat Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

Duplessis and Chaloult and the Bloc Populaire are the political descendants of Henri Bourassa, all mischievous demagogues willing to go to any extreme to pursue their violently isolationist and anti-British policy.

It is unfortunate that Premier Godbout has such unscrupulous and retrogressive opponents. For Godbout, who heads the Liberal Government of Quebec, is the most progressive and enlightened premier that province ever had. His enterprising stand has resulted in the enactment of legislation providing for compulsory education, for social reforms and for the enfranchisement of Quebec women.

Education, of course, is the crying need of Quebec, whose living standards are the lowest in Canada. And Premier Godbout is endeavoring to supply that lack and to fit French-Canadians to take a worthy part in Canadian development and in modern scientific industry.

He has a terrific fight against centuries of miseducation. Bourassa, Duplessis and Chaloult are the champions of that type of miseducation which is the only reason why French-Canadians, as they so frequently complain, are Canada's "hewers of wood and drawers of water."

Good Policing

Two alleged shopbreakers were caught in the act by city police early Sunday morning. This constitutes the bulk of the weekend police news.

One sometimes wonders if Edmonton people thoroughly appreciate the comparative freedom of this city from serious crime. Burglaries, hold-ups and murders do occasionally occur. But compared with the crime rates of other cities, Edmonton's lawlessness is practically non-existent.

This, of course, is not due to the lack of criminal impulse here. People are pretty much the same in all cities and our percentage of undesirables is quite as high as elsewhere.

The fact is that crime languishes in Edmonton because Edmonton enjoys one of the most alert and competent police forces on the continent.

V

Friendly Relations

The cordial relations that exist in this city between Canadians and Americans—under conditions that are sometimes unusually trying—have been maintained, to no slight degree, through the excellent efforts of American Consul Robert English and his capable predecessors.

Mr. English, like John Randolph whom he succeeded, has been exceptionally well-liked here. He has been affable, courteous and well-informed.

Now, Edmonton is told, Mr. English is to be moved to Ottawa to join the staff of the American ambassador there.

Edmonton will be sorry to see him go. And if, as we hope, the sentiments of friendship he has inspired in Edmonton people are reciprocated by himself, the valuable tie between Canadians and Americans will have been enhanced by his all too brief stay in this city.

V

Alberta is Also Involved

Toward the end of the week 30 major fires were reported running through timber areas in north-eastern British Columbia, and "hundreds" of small blazes had been started by sparks from these. Fourteen of the largest fires were along the Alaska Highway. Some of them had covered areas of 10,000 acres or more each. One report said that the timber burned in less than a week would have kept more than 100 mills sawing for three months.

Granted, this devastation was occurring in a region far from the larger markets. But the fact that a great number of saw-mills are in the area shows that the timber has a present cash value — not merely a possible future value. The only hope that the destruction would be stopped was based on the chance that heavy and prolonged rains might come. It was altogether beyond the available manpower to get the situation under control.

If anyone has doubted that Canada needs an effective forestry policy, this should be convincing. And if this particular series of conflagrations are assumed to be British Columbia's worry—the area in question lies in the industrial and economic zone of Edmonton and northern Alberta, rather than that of Vancouver and the coastal region from which it is separated by the mountains.

V

More "Back-Logs"

The returns are not yet complete, but it is known that more persons bought Sixth Victory Loan bonds than ever purchased bonds of a previous issue. The tentative number is given as 2,945,948. That is to say, one in each four people in Canada are owners of Sixth loan bonds. That surely is a record of which to be proud —and thankful. It leaves no room for doubt as to the interest of our people in the war—and also in the future welfare.

What percentage of these had been buyers of previous issues is not indicated, and could not possibly be known for some time. But there is every reason to suppose the first-time buyers number well up in thousands. That is to be hoped, for the more back-logs of credit which are secured by the purchase of such securities the less cause there will be to fear widespread distress when the shift-back has to be made between wartime employment and the occupations of peacetime.

V

Alberta can't hold all the records. Algiers reports an invasion of locusts "some nearly as large as sparrows".

V

Last week Stockholm reported that Marshal von Rundstedt had been appointed commander in chief of the Nazi forces in the western theatre. Now Moscow reports that he has been "fired". If both reports are true they imply that back at Berlin there is a lively row on, between the Prussian militarists and Hitler, the Nazi leader whom they used as a rabble-rouser to work the German masses up to a fever pitch.

V

The convoy which proved to be so costly a lure for Donetz submarine fleet is said to be one of the two largest ever sent to Russia. It arrived intact at Murmansk, with a quarter of a million tons of tanks, guns, and other equipment and supplies. The enemy made no mistake in thinking that fleet of carriers was worth attacking, and will have no misunderstanding as to what its safe arrival signifies.

The Confusion of Thought on the German Question

Wrong Questions Are Being Asked About Kind Of Peace We Want

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The creation in America of a "Country Like a Democratic Germany," the attack that has been made on it by Rex Stout's Society the Prevention of World War xII, Incorporated, and the acrimonious debate that arose in the ILO conference in Philadelphia have brought about a confused discussion.

Dorothy Thompson

The problem of the German future is most difficult and cadnot, in any case, be solved on the basis of an advance blueprint. But the principal questions can be asked, with various alternative answers. The wrong questions are being asked, and meaningless definitions are being made.

For instance, there is the question: Do we want a "soft" peace or a "hard" peace for Germany? The mere raising of this question gives rein to emotion rather than thought. It is not a meaningful question. The question is: How can we get a stable and tolerable peace?

It would seem obvious that no real peace can be maintained without the active support of some Germans, who can get into power and gather behind them a sizable proportion of the German people. The only possible alternative is to make Germany a colony administered by foreign governors.

But what foreign governors? A joint government of Americans, Britons and Russians? Or shall Germany be divided for administration? Do we want to have three non-German governments cheek by jowl, under conditions where various German groups will be intriguing to split the three administrations? Can we treat an organized political, economic, cultural and communications system like a static cake that can be cut with no bleeding? What chance would peace, between the three victors, have to survive in such a chaos?

The question—not German—is the crux of enduring peace. Peace and collaboration between Britain, America and Russia. Had that condition existed we could have prevented this war even with German militarists in power. We could have crushed Hitler before he was dangerous. The Treaty of Versailles did not fail because it was too soft. It could have been softer, and still been adequate, had it been enforced, but some victors were not interested.

Any peace to be enduring must give people life and hope. Imprisonment for life is not a form of education. Many European countries have been conquered, disarmed and put under military occupation by Hitler. But all his heroes and his men have been unable to administer them in peace because Hitler's rule was a death sentence. Some of these countries are nations revived for only a quarter of a century. But with their armies defeated and disarmed, guerrillas still fight in mountains, and saboteurs in factories.

Since everyone agrees that Germans are as obstinate as Yugoslavs and Poles, one must expect that when similar circumstances the Germans would behave the same way.

Mr. Rex Stout's organization—advised, incidentally by a number of Germans—takes the line that Germans are incorrigible people. Yet this organization asserts that it does not want their extermination. If they be right, the only conclusion is: Make Germany a permanent colony—over which there will certainly be a struggle between the victors—and it will be a colony that will make more trouble than Libya, and previous colonies rolled into one. What Hitler could not do to his fellow-Europeans with the philosophic temperament, and plan to do it, Britain and America certainly cannot do.

If I have argued logically, then: What consummation is devoutly to be wished?

To be wished is a Germany, governed by law, restored to parliamentary prccedures, drastically and ruthlessly purged of the peculiarly less adventurers who have brought her and the world into this tragedy, deprived of instruments for aggression, compelled to restore, insofar as it is possible, the dreadful destruction she was wrought; with a social stabilization secured for her own working people; with her frontiers, whatever they may be, protected by a system of collective security and with Russia, the western powers, and Germany herself tied tightly by ties, whatever, to European and world system is created.

This is to be desired, not for the sake of Germans, but for our own sakes—which is, after all, what matters.

Now, if there are ten Germans of clean record, who will go with us on such a program—then let us take the ten Germans. To assume that there are no Germans who could be trusted is to admit total political defeat.

If the counsellors of the incorrigibility theory are right, we must harden our minds and hearts to measures and results that so few Americans have even begun to envision.

Making Career of Hating Mr. King

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

The most pitiful person in the world is the man who destroys himself by mere hatred. The voluntary destruction of men in noble causes is the highest achievement of human personality and the sure proof of its divinity. The destruction of men in inward bitterness, which burns and corrupts with secret fires, is only pathetic.

It is a disease not widely known in Canada, but where it exists, it has adopted a most virulent form. I mean among the little group of Canadians who have made a lifelong career of hating Mr. King and have found little energy left for anything else.

Now, Mr. King is not a lovable sort of man, not the earthy, boisterous person who instantly makes friends and influences people, and he has never read any books to acquire such habits. He has many characteristics of coldness and occasional ruthlessness which do not endear him to the public and he is by nature a very lonely man, who, through some accident, stumbled into the middle of the arena and proceeded to master it. But these are hardly reasons for burning up your precious adrenaline in hating him.

Nevertheless, there exists focal points of infection, chiefly in Toronto and Vancouver, where the disease of hatred has already destroyed the happiness and undoubtedly undermined the health of many Canadians. Their whole lives have been ruined in the process of hating Mr. King. I could name these gentlemen, but it is not kind to point out their misfortunes. Sufficient to say that the tissue of their being has been warped and their personal comfort destroyed not by the failure of their own fortunes, not by poverty, not by bereavement or domestic woe, but simply by the fact that Mr. King is prime minister of Canada and they hate him.

The more Mr. King succeeds, of course, the more they hate, and they hate everyone who doesn't also hate him. Whenever Mr. King wins an election these King haters reach a state requiring the services of a psychiatrist, and if he wins another, the services of an undertaker may be needed to attend to the victims of shock. Meanwhile, when Mr. King was in London the other day, one of the most historic ever made by a Canadian statesman, the King haters were fit to be tied, especially in Vancouver, in the office of the Daily Province.

It required a genius of misrepresentation to excel the distortion of Mr. King's policies in the Tory press of eastern Canada, and this genius has now been supplied on the Pacific coast. The Province, which begins its argument in favor of the Halifax "Titan" theory by the patriotic statement that Canada had acted like a spoiled child all its life and must get into the British Empire or out of it, turned its attention to Mr. King's speech and put this headline over it: "King Voices Opposition to Closer Empire Collaboration in Speech Before British House."

A lie, of course, can go no further than this when the prime minister's statement is absolutely reversed. But who suffers from this malfeasance, this high journalistic crime of distorting a simple fact?

Not Mr. King. He has survived a thousand such distortions and what he said in London cannot be hidden under a Province headline. The only sufferers are the King haters and their present agony indicates clearly their frustration and defeat. They know that the Canadian people are behind Mr. King's foreign policy, that it is supported by the C.C.F. and—which is hardest to bear—by Mr. Bracken. Their shrieks of anguish therefore split the very heavens. Not that they love Canada less but hate Mr. King more; and in the consuming flames of that hatred their last remnants of judgment are being rapidly burned up.

Mr. Churchill, whom all these King haters rightly admire as one of the greatest figures in the history of our race, spoke of his old friend, Mr. King, in London the other day and said of him: "I say without hesitation that there was no other man, and perhaps there was no other career to which a man might look forward, which would enable our honored guest this afternoon to lead Canada united into the heart of this world-shaking struggle." No other man, says Mr. Churchill, and the ordinary Canadian, what does his personal opinion of Mr. King, knows that Mr. Churchill is right. If not Mr. King today, who? That is the question for Canadians to settle, not whether they love Mr. King as a brother.

In the visible future Canadians will be urged by some to throw aside, at the moment, of great unrest crisis in the making of the peace, the man who, as Mr. Churchill said, was the only man who could have brought this country through the war in its present condition. We are asked to put in his place Mr. Coldwell, who has never been in a cabinet and whose theory of socializing our economy is rejected by the people's will. We shall be asked to put in Mr. King's place Mr. Bracken, who has not a shred even to smatter the House of Common and yet has the incredible effrontery to ask for a mandate to go immediately to the peace conference. It is really amusing.

But the King haters are not amused. They are hating, they are sitting about in dank basements and cold- garrets warming themselves with hatred, nursing hatred like a misshapen child to their bosoms, eating hatred, drinking it and living it, and while Mr. King remains quite cheerful and reasonably successful, they continue to destroy themselves with increasing doses of this poison.

Suppressors of Invention

By J. H. GRAY

The dictionary defines a cartel as a union of manufacturers for the purpose of raising prices. It is certainly that, for the history of cartels is the history of artificially raised and maintained prices. If this were all there was to cartels, they would be bad enough, unfortunately there is another phase of cartel operations which does the consumers in return as a result of the price raising antics of the cartel operators. This is the supression of new inventions and the perpetuation within the economy not only of obsolete production methods but outmoded commodities.

Two examples of this aspect of the cartel racket have recently come to light in the United States. The first concerns the lowly match; the second the Pullman company of America. Charges have recently been laid against a score of American, British, Canadian and Swedish match companies and against one Scottish Sherman anti-trust act. The Canadian company named is the E. B. Eddy company, which completely dominates the Canadian match making field. The United States federal court in Philadelphia last week convicted the Diamond company of monopolizing the sleeping car field and ordered the dissolution of the monopoly.

One of the charges against the match monopoly is that it suppressed the "everlasting match." This match could be struck and blown out and struck again 150 times. It was widely used in Europe, was extensively favored by heavy smokers who are prodigious match consumers. Rights to the invention were acquired by the American match monopoly. Putting this match into production would have rendered obsolete much of the manufacturing machinery of the combine, so it was withheld from the market. Thus the match using the Canadian people had to go using an inferior match and a costlier article, and unless the cartel is smashed will continue to do so indefinitely.

The Pullman case is an exact parallel in another field. This company enjoys a monopoly of the U.S. sleeping car business. American railways do not operate their own sleeping and parlor cars, they farm the concession out to the Pullman company.

The company, in addition, monopolizes the construction of sleeping cars. Other companies have attempted to get into the lush profits of the Pullman company. The Budd company of Philadelphia developed a modern, streamlined, air-conditioned sleeper. Three other companies did the same. None could find a place in market for products because the Pullman company had tied the railways up with exclusive franchise agreements.

The American public has had to take the inferior service which the Pullman company provided. Many of their cars are more than 20 years old and do not compare with the modern cars in use in other countries. Some of them, speaking from recent experience, more closely resemble Turkish baths on wheels.

These are but two of a lengthy list of the activities of cartels exposed in recent months by the Unsted States department of justice. Clearly the cartelizers have outstripped the dictionaries. They have consistently practiced prohibitive prices for their products and they prevent the cosumers benefit from the fruits of invention in the inventive genius of this age.

John Curtin's Real Position

By GRANT DEXTER

LONDON.—Judged by the fact that he proposed a Commonwealth secretariat, Mr. Curtin of Australia might be regarded as the leader at the recent Dominions prime ministers' conference of the empire consolidation or centralization school of thought. Such a view, however, would be superficial.

Contacts with the Australian delegation and, indeed, the innersense official statements issued by the Curtin party, place a different interpretation on the viewpoint of the premier. The proposal for a secretariat, in fact, is a new form of nationalism and is directed towards obtaining a greater influence in the policy of the United Kingdom—not for Commonwealth purposes so much as for the safeguarding of Australia's vital interests.

The reason for this is to be found in Australia's war record, in sharp disagreements which have occurred between the government of Australia and the United Kingdom on war strategy and in the apparently serious loss of confidence in Australia in the power of the United Kingdom to protect Australia from invasion.

Australia, having come within an ace of conquest and occupation by Japan, has reconsidered her position in relation to the Commonwealth in general and the United Kingdom in particular and the result of this reconsideration is apparent in Mr. Curtin's advocacy of a secretariat. That there may be a sense of urgency in the consequences is regarded as certain.

Australia is no longer prepared to rely for protection on the United Kingdom and it follows that Australia will be much more cautious in future in committing her armed forces to the ends of the earth in compliance with decisions of higher strategy arrived at by the United Kingdom government—whether or no in consultation with the United States government. The secretariat, in reality, seems chiefly to be a device whereby Australia would hope to increase her influence at London in order that her point of view be more insistently expressed.

The reasons for such an attitude are clear in Australia's war record. With her own forces far distant, she lay almost defenceless before the enemy. Australia, it seems, will never agree that she had a fair deal or that her vital interests were truly considered in framing the master plan at London and Washington.

It is hard for Canadians to appreciate the Australian viewpoint because Canada has never been in such peril as Australia. But if Canada's armed forces had been sent to war theatres thousands of miles away, if Canada were a United States at hand, and if the chances of repelling the Japs had seemed all but hopeless, the mood of the war council had insisted on holding Canadian troops abroad—if all this had happened Canadians would understand how Australia feels today.

On May 4, Mr. Curtin issued a statement on Australia's war record. It is not a controversial document but it states the Australian case bluntly. As this statement points out, Australia argued that there were three vital objectives to be defended: the United Kingdom, Suez and Singapore. Singapore was regarded as the gateway to the south west Pacific.

Australia's traditional policy is explained as follows:

"Australia has been nurtured in a conception of Empire defence in which it accepted the responsibility for its own part in the defence of its local defence. It also depended on British seapower to deter aggression and to aid in defeating an invasion of the Commonwealth by attacking the lines of communication of the enemy and keeping open those by which reinforcements and supplies could be sent to Australia. Conversely, if there were no serious threat to Australia, its forces would be available to defend other vital areas on the principle of mutual support. The exercise of British seapower depended on adequate naval strength and the second line defence of strategically located bases which could be used by the British fleet. The base of primary importance to the defence of Australia was Sinapore. These were the basic principles which governed the security of Australia when she entered the war with Britain in September, 1939. On the disposition of their disposition validity Australia concentrated on the maximum contribution it could make on the fighting fronts overseas."

Thus Australia scattered her armed forces. The navy was split and served in the seven seas. Land forces (122,000 men) went to the middle east and fought in Africa, Greece, Crete and Syria. The air force went abroad. And after Dunkirk, Australia stripped herself of equipment in aid of Britain. One division was diverted from the middle east to Britain. That was the situation when Japan struck.

Forces were now required for the defence of Australia and to reinforce the outer screen from singapore to New Zealand. Mr. Churchill agreed to transfer two divisions from the middle east to Java. The Singapore fell and the destination of these two divisions was changed to Australia. The Australian government also desired the immediate return of the third division from Libya but this was delayed for nearly a year—a delay in which Australia consented but, evidently, not without the gravest misgivings.

It was impossible to deploy the first two divisions against the enemy until the fall of 1942 and meantime Australia faced invasion without any trained troops. Such military forces as Australia had were ill-equipped. There was not one fighter plane in Australia and only 50 bombers.

There is a touch of bitterness in the statement: "In a decision by Mr. Churchill and President Roosevelt taken in March, 1942, the Pacific was made a sphere of American strategic responsibility. It followed, therefore, that we had to look to the United States for the aid to supplement our own efforts."

The crisis began to lift with the victory of the coral Sea. But Australia remembers, and evidently is convinced that the higher strategy was wrong and that Australia's need for her own fighting men and for sufficient aid to secure the Commonwealth should have been recognized. The statement notes that Mr. Churchill talked much of the peril of Germany as the master of Europe, but what of Japan as the master of the far east? And the statement also notes that the earlier defeat of Germany by the European war was later changed so that, "the war in the Pacific would be prosecuted with the same vigor . . .

Thus the Curtin proposal for a secretariat rests not a desire for empire consolidation but, rather, an acute form of nationalism. Australia means to follow her own judgment in matters of war more than in the past, to trust less to empire defence and to insist upon a greater voice in the shaping of policy. This is not a movement toward unity or a single voice. It is the opposite. Never again will Australia be caught with her armed forces fighting on far distant fields, while the homeland lies defenceless.

This aspect of the Curtin statement, for some reason or other, has received little publicity in the newspapers here.

Education

WILSON HARRIS IN THE ATLANTIC

"But King George's two daughters —the Princess Elizabeth is happily not, like Victoria, an only child— are well-provided also with teachers of special subjects, such as French, German, and music. Princess Elizabeth today reads history with the Vice-Provost of Eton, on the basis of such works as Trevelyan's "History of England", which could not be improved upon, and Muzzey's "History of the United States" (how many English girls of 17 read any American history at all?), together with European history in outline. In Biblical history Canon Crawley, of St. George's Chapel, Windsor, has been her guide. A natural linguist, she speaks French and German fluently and with an excellent accent. She has read some Moliere, some Corneille, some Daudet, and she knows many of "Les Meilleurs Poemes Francais" by heart.

After the war the blockade will end at once. In matters of relief our Allies will come first and the Germans must not expect much consideration until the needs of the occupied territories have been met. The longer they have to wait, the longer will they have to wait—British Minister of Economic Warfare the Earl of Selborne.

Thanks to a good grain harvest, the total diet in the occupied countries, with the doubtful exception of Greece, is as good as or better than last winter. Nations in the liberated countries are on a generous scale.—British Food Ministry expert.

What do people of Britain and people overseas want when the war is over? They are expecting to come back to something they know. They want a home to come back to. That is more important than all these noble schemes for reforming a new world.—British Minister of Reconstruction Lord Woolton.

District News in Brief

Manville Seeding Is 90% Complete

MANVILLE—Light rains within the past 10 days have improved crop conditions in this district. Moisture conditions, and crop prospects are good.

At a meeting of the Manville Sports Association, it was decided to hold the annual sports day on Saturday, July 1. This district has been celebrating Dominion Day for the last 39 years. Committees have been appointed to arrange the program for the day. The officers elected were, president, W. N. Crooks; vice-president, S. E. McFadden; secretary, G. M. Cundal; executive committee, Ross Leitch, Alfred Gerhardt, and R. B. Bennett.

The Bluebirds, the women's soft ball team will get the first test of the season on Wednesday, May 24, meeting the Edmonton Bomberettes of the city league at the Elks kiddies day sports to be held at Vermilion. Two exhibition games have been arranged.

Arrangements are going ahead for the development of natural gas for the town. It is possible that the Waintown company which holds the franchise, will re-drill the North-West Claysmore well located four miles east of Manville for the gas supply. This well when drilled has a gas flow of two million cubic feet.

David McCauley, mechanic and blacksmith is re-building his shop and when completed will have a fully modern machine shop.

Red Deer Club Hears of Trip

RED DEER — Members of the Kinsmen Club heard a talk by Capt. Morley Smith, R.C.A.S.C, at their last meeting. Capt. Smith formerly employed by the Ford Motor Company of Canada, and told of a trip he had taken to Australia and New Zealand. He described something of the life and customs in the two countries. Reports were given on two Kinsmen projects. Tickets were reported to be selling well on the Sylvan Lake cottage which the club is raffling this summer. Entries were said to be coming in well for the Central Alberta charity farmers livestock sale which will be held here this fall.

A large number of members of the Red Deer Club were at Camrose over the week-end for a convention of the clubs in Kinsmen District No. 4.

The sea cadets held an auction sale here recently and netted $250. The money will be used in carrying on their training. A number of articles, furniture, has been donated by the citizens. Alex L. Sim, Red Deer and Bert Lockhart, of Innisfail, the auctioneers, and S. S. Edwards, the clerk, donated their services.

Reserve Army units and the cadet corps in Red Deer held a church parade on Sunday morning when they attended services at Leonard Gaetz Memorial United Church. Maj. R. S. Gillespie, M.C., officer commanding the 78th Reserve Field Battery, R.C.A., was in command of the parade. In addition to the battery the 14th (R) Army Tank Regiment, the Air Cadets, the Sea Cadets and the Army Cadets took part, with a good turnout of officers and other ranks. The Rev. Andrew S. Wood, pastor of the church, preached an appropriate sermon for the occasion. Following the service the parade marched past the Cenotaph on Ross Street and gave the salute. Mayor E. S. Hogg took the salute at the City Hall.

Hopfe, containing some oats was burned. Several residents helped the farmers south of town to fight fire Monday night. These were the first real rains of the season for this district and the moisture was badly needed. A tea was given in honor of Mrs. W. R. Drever of Haney, B.C., by Mrs. Richard Drever, and Mrs. Cyril Drever.

HOW MUCH SOUP CAN A BOMBER CARRY?

TEN times as much if the soup has been dehydrated and compressed. One four-motored bomber can carry enough dehydrated and compressed soup for 500,000 servings—a half-million bowls of soup!

Dehydrated and compressed foods when carried by ship provide a saving of 90% in shipping weight and up to 50% in bulk. Today, when cargo space is still at a premium, this method of preparing foodstuffs for overseas simplifies and speeds the delivery of larger quantities of food than might otherwise be possible.

Today, all the billions of eggs shipped abroad from this continent are dried; all milk going to Britain is dried. Most of the potatoes, carrots, onions, beets, cabbage are also dehydrated. These foods when rehydrated retain their appearance, flavour and most of their vitamin values.

Dehydrated food packages must be air-proof and moisture-proof. Many packages now being successfully shipped from this continent use a laminated material built partly from moisture-proof "Cellophane" or depend upon "Cellophane" specially treated with wax resin compositions. Thus, "Cellophane", developed for peacetime use, serves the United Nations by helping provide proper packaging for vitally important dehydrated and compressed foods.

"Cellophane" cellulose film for packaging foods offers another example of how Industrial Chemistry is today serving Canada and her allies.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

YESTERDAY'S steady downpour put an early crimp in the schedule of the Senior Baseball League, but the season between Dodgers and Arrows originally set for tonight will go ahead at Renfrew tomorrow at the usual time, 7 o'clock. Monday's fastball doubleheader at Kingsway was washed out, too.

The clash Wednesday between Morris Hawkey and Walter Johnson should be a honey. Johnson of course has not appeared at Renfrew since he played with Ponoka in the league prior to his joining the services, but Walter's record as a pitcher has been excellent. Hawkey won more games than any other chucker in the circuit in 1943.

Manager Bill Bull of the Arrows has a justifiable complaint. It appears that during one of the recent practices at Renfrew, some individual belonging to a low type of humanity — commonly called a sneak-thief—got away with a box containing the catcher's body protector, mask and 12 caps. The unfortunate part is that protectors just cannot be procured anywhere now and as a result the Arrow receiver is at a disadvantage. The caps were black with the letter A in white.

HERE AND THERE . . .

KEN COX, with the Arrows last season and centre and league-leading scorer with the Canadian Athletic Club Juniors for two winters, is not playing senior ball this year. Just now Ken is busy with Grade twelve affairs and he is counting on a full-time Navy job in the near future.

With the sports jacket donated by Cal Pickles' Men's Shop already in the bag, Gino Valenti, the Yanks' long-distance hitter now will be shooting for that Biltmore offered for the first homer by Tom Campbell's Hat Shop. And just to be in ahead of the crush—one could be using one of those things ourselves, Gino, and wouldn't be averse to keeping it in shape for you pending straightening out of this-Hitler matter.

This corner would acknowledge the courtesy and co-operation of the boys in the photographic section here of the U.S. Army Air Forces. The excellent action shot which appeared on this page in Monday's issue—it was delivered during the wee sma' hours by Pfc. R. M. Hall, whose home is in Pine Bluff, Arkansas—is just one more on what is now quite a lengthy list. Apparently extra work and inconvenience hold no fears for the "camera boys" out at the Air Base. Their co-operation is appreciated.

CRIBBAGE QUERY

W. B., Edmonton: Your four-hand cribbage query was submitted to a number of cribbage enthusiasts and all agree with "D" in his claim for a run of four after playing the second 4-card. They contend it would be considered a double run when counting a hand, so why not in the course of play?

W. P. J. Casey, a well-known local player, sums up as follows: "Run counts run of four plus two for 31, a total of six holes. The 'go' in this case means nothing."

As a matter of general interest, the play in the query was as follows: 5-4-3 (run of three)-4 (run of four) - go - go - 4 (played by "D" who claims another four run, plus two holes for 31).

Entry Date Extended

Sandlot Fastballers To Meet on Monday

FOUR meetings will be held in different parts of the city next Monday night in connection with organization of the Sandlot Fastball League. It was also decided last night to extend the time of entry until that date.

Just as soon as the exact number of teams are known schedules will be drawn. Passes for the "Knothole Club" good for entry to senior baseball games, will be issued at these meetings.

As announced previously, all teams taking part will be eligible for the city championship series which will be held during July.

One of the meetings will be held in Mount Glen Y, where Bill Tait will be the chairman. Ten teams are already in sight for this area—Jasper Place, Mount Glen, Canadians, A.Z.A. and West End Warriors—each with two divisions.

The Rossdale meeting will be at George Bowen's residence, 9627 101 street, phone 31784. Cloverdale, Ritchie, Bonsdale and Forest Heights, each with two sections, have teams in this group.

Norwood meeting will be held in Alberta Avenue Community Hall, with Art Jackson (phone 71507) as chairman. Parkwood, Strathcona, St. Alphonsus and Alberta Ave. all with two age groups have teams in this section.

The meeting at Bissell Institute will be in charge of Doug Stevenson (phone 21615) and A. R. Lawrence (phone 23690) and will include the Boyle Street, McCauley and Boulevard districts. It is understood that most of the teams organized in this area by Mr. Lawrence in 1943 will be entering again this year.

All meetings will commence at 8 p.m.

Field of 10 Is Expected

Track Likely Heavy For Alberta's Derby

By LOU DAVIES

CALGARY, May 23.—The racing strip at Victoria Park was deep in slop for the eighth day's racing program Monday which indicates that Wednesday's 14th running of the Alberta Derby will likely be contested on heavy track.

A field of at least ten westerbred three-year-olds is expected to contest the seven furlong classic with Pagan Star, Divulge and Bragg Creek coming in for the bulk of the betting play.

The original handicap for Monday failed to fill and Lorelei D., owned by the Winnipeg stable, accounted for the best offering. The filly took the track at the outset and was never in trouble. Gladys Dale ran to the place with Double Rose third. Zoil fell while rounding the first turn but Jockey Sylvia suffered nothing more than a shaking-up.

Making his first start since 1942 The Past found the track conditions to his liking in the opener and splashed to a three-and-one-half length victory. Moss Marcus completed the Daily Double, which paid $35.10.

Dodd and Club Soda figured in a $14.35 Quinella in the seventh. Dodd won easily but Club Soda was doing his best at the finish.

RACING BRIEFS

Manager R. James Speers arrived from Winnipeg to take in the Alberta Derby . . . His Whittier Park stock farm will not have an entrant this year, but several bred at his Winnipeg farm are among the prominent eligibles . . . "R.J." reports that his King's Plate eligible Gower Mon, shipped badly from California to Toronto and it is doubtful if he will be a starter in Saturday's King's Plate at the Woodbine . . . Youville was claimed out of today's fifth race for $1,000 by W. J. Yates of Calgary.

Frank Frisch Confident Bucs Will Hold Their Own

Frank Frisch . . . everything's a proolem.

By FRANK FRISCH
Manager of Pirates

PITTSBURGH, May 23.—In view of the long established fact that one of baseball's most appealing features is its uncertainty, the present season should be a record-breaker for interest and consequently general success. There never has been anything to approach 1944 as a year in which nobody could tell what was going to happen.

I'm positive that applies to the National League. Somebody was visualizing a campaign like the current one when he coined the old wheeze about taking nothing for granted in baseball. Even as things stand now, no one can tell what to expect from one day to another. The probability of more players being called by the Armed Forces adds to the uncertainty.

When an average number of players are lost to each of the clubs through calls by the service, the stronger clubs are going to lose more strength than the weaker ones. That is, the players taken from them on an average will be better players than those taken from second-division clubs. That tends to equalize things.

NO SOFT SPOTS

If one thing to a greater extent than another has surprised me, it is the fine exhibition that has been given by all the clubs.

During the off-season the general opinion heard expressed was that the loss of so many top-drawer players would greatly reduce the quality of play. As far as my observation has extended, this has not been the case. Clubs encountered by the Pirates have been on a par.

There isn't a club in the league that can be viewed as easy to beat. True, there are three or four that appear more formidable than the others. The best we have seen are St. Louis and Cincinnati. Both are strong all around and look like the jerseys that must be beaten.

The Braves had not won a road game this year until they beat us at Forbes Field, May 11. Then they suddenly showed a remarkable burst of power. The Cubs are not to be measured by their unfortunate start. The Phillies mean it.

HANDLEY'S LOSS HURT

I see no reason for altering the opinion I held at the start that the well-balanced Pirates are going to be in this thing all the way. It was a blow to lose Lee Handley for more than a month through a leg injury just as our regular lineup was becoming settled, but we have good infield reserves, as shown by the fact that we won seven of our next nine.

With Al Lopez back, Pittsburgh's catching is as good as any.

Pitching has been excellent in the main, just how consistently good it has been you may judge from the fact that it was not until our 16th game that a pitcher was knocked out.

Preacher Roe looks like one of the most accomplished freshman hurlers. Al Gerheauser has shown a favorable impression. Nick Strincevich appears to have found himself. Xavier Rescigno ought to be much improved after a year's experience. We can depend on such veterans as Rip Sewell and Max Butcher. Johnny Gee will help.

All the Pirates require is a batting brace. We haven't done much hitting so far, but that's because bad weather kept the squad indoors during the training period.

I am hopeful that the Pirates will be able to show their own in what promises to be one of the tightest races in history.

16,000 See Armstrong Win

Henry Halts Aaron Perry With Sixth-Round T.K.O.

WASHINGTON, May 23.—(AP)—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, one of the greatest little fighting men in ring history, proved himself the master of an up-and-coming youngster by stopping Aaron Perry, Washington welterweight hopeful, in the sixth round of a scheduled 10 frame bout Monday, to win a technical knockout. Armstrong weighed 140, Perry 142½.

About 16,000 customers turned out for the bout.

Armstrong, the Los Angeles dynamo who once held three world titles at the same time, slammed Perry to the floor five times. Perry got up off the canvas on three occasions in the fifth to continue the fight.

Armstrong

In the sixth, Perry, weakened by Armstrong's relentless body attack, went down for a nine count in the opening minute. Dazed, he struggled to his feet and began throwing wild lefts and rights in the general direction of the dancing Armstrong. Then he collided with a stiff right to the jaw and dropped again.

Perry tried to get up but Referee Charlie Reynolds felt he had taken enough punishment and was unable to continue. The time was 2:56 of the sixth.

Perry was outclassed from the opening round on. He tossed a series of effective hooks to the face in that first heat but Armstrong calmly escaped the range and belted him into a weakened condition with a relentless body attack. On the Associated Press score card, Armstrong was credited with five of the six rounds, Perry winning the first only.

Perry simply was no match for Armstrong in ring technique. He couldn't cope with Henry's vicious body attack and boring-in tactics, and Armstrong never gave the youngster a chance to get set to land his heralded right.

Sask. Ten-Pins

MOOSE JAW, May 23.—(CP)—Regina Western Springs won the southern Saskatchewan ten-pin bowling title here Monday. They compiled an eight-game total of 7,453 in a home-and-home series featuring Regina and Moose Jaw teams.

Moose Jaw Auburn Stokers were second and Regina Vic Alleys third.

Decision of Aldermen Unanimous

EDMONTON'S city council by unanimous vote Monday night sanctioned the holding of a 10-day race meeting beginning August 1. Application for permission to hold the meeting was made by the Edmonton Exhibition Association.

There was no opposition from aldermen, and no submissions against the holding of the meeting were made by organizations or the general public.

At a meeting of the Edmonton Exhibition Association's directors held last Friday it was unanimously decided to seek permission from the city to hold the meeting.

This permission was a prerequisite to obtaining permission from the R.C.A.F. authorities for the use of the grounds and for passage way into the race track.

The application from the association to council asked for the written consent of the City of Edmonton as lessors of the ground to the holding of the race meeting.

A further condition to the granting of the use of the grounds was that arrangements be made regarding additional insurance. This will be assumed by the Exhibition Association.

Ald. H. D. Ainlay said he had opposed the holding of a race meeting and midway last year because it was not representative of the exhibition and would have left a wrong impression concerning the association's activities. He said he now had no objection to the holding of a race meeting.

Ald. R. Winslow Hamilton asked C. E. Wilson, manager of the association, several question relative to the operations of the association, and also if Edmonton was the only city on the western fair circuit that did not have races last year.

Motion that the council consent to the holding of the meeting was made by Ald. J. M. Douglas, and was seconded by Ald. C. E. Gariepy.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By SYD THOMAS

TORONTO, May 23.—(CP)—Chicago Black Hawks must have been harking to Red Dutton's suggestions for bigger and better hockey seasons, with games galore on the program. Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll reports that the Chicks are expected to 70-game schedule next season at the annual N.H.L. meeting in Montreal.

The report is that the idea was voted down as unfeasible with very little discussion for or against, and was shelved until the fall meeting of the executive.

Chances are the whole thing will be forgotten by then, but since the league's managing director is in favor of longer seasons some action might be forthcoming at that.

Of course, one angle the hockey bigwigs can't lose sight of is that there may be no N.H.L. at all next year if the war and the manpower situation intervene. The professional loop might have difficulty playing 10 or 20 games, even if the juvenile ranks are raided for hockey ivory.

What price sports?

Ken (Vancouver Province) McConnell wages a debate with some readers over the relative value of sport news in these days of rationed newsprint and unrationed war news.

Ken points out that, without publicity in the public prints, horse racing and other sports would die into obscurity. And what a howl that would raise if Joe Plunger couldn't read up on the favorites to find out how to lose a few Simoleons at the track or the stadium.

Besides that, servicemen would be as hard hit as any, since they are among the keenest of sport fans no matter where they are stationed. Proof enough of that is the keen demand for sport news by service readers of the Canadian Press News, overseas tabloid for the troops. Not only

Six Straight Victories

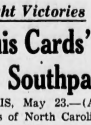

St. Louis Cards' Max Lanier Top Southpaw in National

ST. LOUIS, May 23.—(AP)—A natural right-hander from the hills of North Carolina has become the National League's leading pitcher—as a left-hander.

Hubert Max Lanier of Denton, N.C., at present toppling senior circuit twirlers with six victories and no defeats, signed at St. Louis Cardinal contract in 1933 after a successful high school record.

The Cards wanted Max to work up gradually, but he didn't like minor league salaries and refused to report for four years.

Finally, Branch Rickey sent his brother Frank to talk to Lanier and Max agreed to play for the Cardinal system, providing he could get to the majors in two years.

Max Lanier

Lanier came up to the big time in 1938. After only fair success, he found his stride last season to mark up the best left-handed record in the league—15 victories, seven defeats.

But Max started out life as a right-hander and did everything right handed until he was eight years old. Then he suffered a broken right arm. With the arm in a sling he tried out his left arm. Two more breaks in the right one, and Max was definitely committed to the southpaw way of life.

Maybe because his left-handed throwing style is only adopted, Lanier is anything but the typical eccentric portsider.

He speaks quietly, when at all, and his control has continually improved. This season in winning six games he struck out 37 men—in leading 11 New York Giants in his last start—and walked only 11.

Winning Title Gave Lou Ambers His Big Thrill

By LOU AMBERS
Former Lightweight Champion

WINNING the lightweight championship from Tony Canzoneri, Sept. 3, 1936, gave me my biggest thrill in sport. The fight was an eye-popper in more ways than one.

Lou Ambers

I popped Tony on the jaw many a time during the battle—one of my toughest, by the way—and he did the same to me.

The 15th round was a pippin. I coasted as much as possible in the 14th, came out strong for the last. Tony did likewise. He met my rush with a bombardment of wallops that had me dizzy. One landed on my left eye and it actually popped out so far you could have hung you hat on it.

I fought harder than I thought I could and didn't hear the bell at the finish. It took Al Weill, my manager, and Charley Goldman, my trainer, half an hour of hard work to get that eye back near normal.

But winning was worth it.

Costantino Earns 10-Round Verdict

PITTSBURGH, May 23—(AP)—As 7,000 fans "punched away at the Axis" to the tune of $100,000 in war bond pledges, Lulu Costantino, New York lightweight, gained a unanimous 10-round decision over Billy Miller, Pittsburgh, at Forbes Field Monday night.

The opening of the outdoor boxing season here saw Costantino even the score with Miller and sever Pittsburgh Ace's string of 24 straight victories. Both weighed in at 131.

Nova Maintains String of Wins

OMAHA, May 23 — (AP) — Lou Nova, Van Nuys, Calif., maintained his string of consecutive victories by scoring a technical knockout Monday night over Johnny Denson, Indianapolis, before a crowd of about 5,000.

The victory, Nova's ninth consecutive, came when Denson was not allowed to come out for the seventh because of a bleeding cut over his eye, opened by Nova in the fourth.

Chalky Wright Scores Knockout

BALTIMORE, May 23.—(AP)—Chalky Wright, veteran Los Angeles Negro featherweight, landed only one good punch in eight rounds but it brought him a knockout win over youthful, fast-stepping Sammy Daniels, of Baltimore, in their scheduled 10-round bout at the Coliseum Monday night.

Wright weighed 132½, Daniels 135.

1,660,544 Admissions So Far

Major League Attendance Shows Increase Over 1943

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP)—Big league baseball is heading today toward its second million in paid attendance with the first fifth of the season showing an approximate turnstile count of 1,660,544 admissions.

With both major leagues enjoying another two-day travel interlude that will be broken only by one night game in Brooklyn tonight, a survey of early-season figures showed average attendance per game hovered just above the 8,000 mark. Last year's average was approximately 9,250, and the entire season aggregated 7,714,636.

Sixty per cent of the customers pushed through the gates on the five Sundays and 20 night games. The after-dark totals, consisting largely of Washington returns where 10 have been played, approximates 277,226, or 13,861 per game.

The Sunday total is 715,632 of which the American League has drawn 397,744.

Washington leads both leagues with 220,821, half of which comes out for the "owl" games. The New York Yankees and Philadelphia Athletics follow next in line before Pittsburgh, the top draw in the National with an approximate 137,324 for the first 16 home dates.

Durocher Making Experiments With 2nd, 3rd Basemen

NEW YORK, May 23.—(AP)—Derby Bill Clymer used to have three teams, one coming, one going and one playing, but the Brooklyn Dodgers have doubled the number and revised it to apply to second and third basemen.

Since spring training opened, Leo Durocher has had seven different men playing third base and an assorted half-dozen at the keystone sack.

The experiments started way back yonder when the Brooks were dividing their time between 6 o'clock indoor baseball at West Point and skiing at Bear Mountain.

The club had lost Billy Herman to the Navy and it was apparent that Arky Vaughan's statements about sticking to his California farm at least until mid-summer were the real McCoy.

Those who got the call to the hot corner were, Gil English, a rookie from Indianapolis, outfielder Dixie Walker, and catcher Bobby Bragan. Fielder Frenchy Bordagaray gave it a fling and so did Bill Hart and Luis Olmo for short periods. Right now it belongs to Bordagaray.

In April the second baseman was a fellow named Frank Drews who never actually was purchased from Rubier were believed in ancient times to have the power to stop bleeding.

Indians Win 3-1 Exhibition Game

BAINBRIDGE, Md., May 23.—(AP)—Big Mike Naymick hit and pitched the Cleveland Indians of the American League to a 3-1 victory over the Bainbridge Naval Training Centre in an exhibition baseball game Monday before 8,000 sailors and officers.

With none out in the second inning, Naymick, six-foot, eight-inch Indian hurler, doubled to drive in three runs.

Hart took over, followed by Olmo, Pat Ankenman and now catcher Mickey Owen is it.

NEW YORK, May 23.—Western clubs, paced by the Detroit Tigers and St. Louis Cardinals, showed a 36-point advantage in strength over eastern major league teams in the season's first phase of intersectional play, completed Sunday.

The eight western outfits won 57 and lost 53 games during eastwest competition which opened May 10. Their average of .518 was .036 better than the .482 registered by the eastern clubs.

A breakdown of the figures discloses, however, that this slight western advantage exists largely because of the superiority of the four western National circuit representatives—Cardinals, Reds, Pirates and Cubs—over eastern invaders. The story was different in the American League, where the four eastern defenders—Yankees, Senators, Red Sox and Athletics—proved generally superior to westerners.

UNSUCCESSFUL TRIP

EASTERN National Leaguers — Phillies, Giants, Braves and Dodgers—averaged an unsuccessful road trip, losing 32-games while winning only 22, for .407. Their losing was worse than that of the traveling western quartet—Browns, Tigers, Indians and White Sox—who dropped 31, while winning 25, for .446.

The Cardinals paced the National circuit during intersectional play with 9 wins and 5 losses; and they were ably supported by fellow westerners— Pittsburgh (8-5); Cincinnati (8-6); and Chicago (7-6). This contrasted with the performance of western American League outfits. The Detroit Tigers made the best intersectional showing of any team in the majors, with 10-4, a triumphal tour that lifted them from last place to the fourth rung. However, none of the other American westerners played up to .500; their road records being: Brown (4-10); Indians (6-8); and White Sox (5-9).

None of the eastern American circuit representatives did as well as the Tigers, but none of them dropped below .500 while defending. The Athletics, Red Sox and Yankees each won 8 and lost 6; while Washington broke even with 7 and 7. Among Eastern National Leaguers, however, Boston's Braves were the only outfit to break even on the road. They hit .500 on the nose with 7 and 7. Brooklyn skidded, with 4-10, while the Giants registered 5-7, and the Phillies 6-8.

GAMES WELL ATTENDED

THIS quartet of eastern National Leaguers had an unsuccessful road trip although their total of hits was 524 against 493 for the superior westerners, who made their safeties count. The situation was more normal in the American division, where the superior easterners out-hit the visiting westerners, 523 to 516.

The second phase of international play begins Wednesday, with western National teams invading the east, and eastern American clubs touring the west. Meanwhile the Giants will sandwich in a game at Brooklyn tonight.

The weather warmed during the first period of intersectional competition, and games were well attended. Washington led in attendance, thanks to night ball, drawing 164,360 fans to 12 home stands that included two doubleheaders. The Athletics were second with 150,127 at 12 home stands, including two doubleheaders, exactly the same program with which the Yankees drew 147,237. Pittsburgh led the National circuit with 107,324 at 11 home stands, including two doubleheaders.

Max Baer Glad Public Knows He Wasn't Quitter

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 23—(AP)—Sgt. Max Baer says he knows, and his friends know, that he never has been a quitter—and it's nice to have the general public know it, too.

Speaking from his bed in the station hospital of the San Antonio Air Service Command, the former world heavyweight boxing champion commented Sunday on the statement by Joe Louis that Max was the toughest man he ever fought.

Max Baer

"If I had wanted to quit," he said, "I'm a good enough ham actor to take a punch going away and stay down for the count. Sure, I could have quit and been a hero for it, a 'game loser,' but nobody ever saw Max Baer flat on his back in the ring and they never will."

Maxie, who has been touring the United States on behalf of the physical fitness program of the Air Service Command, is in the Kelly Field hospital for a routine check-up. Because of his long years in the ring, Max has a number of injuries that have been causing him trouble lately.

Baer declared that although he knew he didn't stand a chance of winning against Louis, he wasn't frightened. "It was a little like a soldier with blank cartridges facing an opponent with live ammunition," he said.

He admitted he lacks the killer instinct and added: "It's easy for the fan at the ringside or in the gallery—who doesn't feel a single punch—to be bloodthirsty and yell for the kill, but boxing is supposed to be a sport, not legalized murder."

"Just get down in bed and quit arguing with that burglar, dear. I daresay he knows more about the police department than you do!"

Bomb Official Traces History Of Production

The present strength of the Canadian bomb industry has been principally due to "The complete devotion to the job that the average Canadian staff will give in war time, and the fact that a fine sense of team play has been developed in an important group of people who have had a good deal of satisfaction in doing this job," E. Holt Gurney, Toronto, president of the Gurney Foundry Co., said Monday.

In addition, Mr. Gurney emphasized in his address before the regular Kiwanis club Monday luncheon meeting at the Macdonald, "There has been another very important factor, namely, the entire co-operation and support of the Department of Munitions and Supply in Ottawa."

REVIEWS INDUSTRY

Mr. Gurney traced the birth and growth of the bomb industry in Canada, from the very beginning in June, 1939.

The problem of possible war production was the main subject for discussion at the meeting of the C.M.A. held at Bigwin Inn on Lake of Bays in June of 1939. It was decided at this meeting to send a group of manufacturers, each selected for his particular background in some subject, to England, and a committee was appointed to confer with the prime minister of Canada immediately after this meeting, in order to make the necessary arrangements.

About twenty manufacturers agreed to go to represent the association, to be joined in England by several more who were already over there. The government was represented by General McNaughton, Colonel Noel Carr (now Brigadier Carr, who is acting as assistant director-general of automotive and tank production branch) and Allen Gill, also of the National Research council.

The Ontario Research Foundation sent O. W. Ellis, their chief metallurgist. At the last minute, W. A. Black, of the Otis-Fensom company, the immediate past-president of the association, who was to have been the chairman of the group, became seriously ill, and I took his place after we had actually sailed, said Mr. Gurney.

"We left Quebec on the Empress of Britain on the 26th of July 1939. General McNaughton at once made one of his many very useful contributions to the success of the trip pointing out to us that almost certainly we would be met in the beginning by senior officers of the war office, the admiralty and the air ministry, and that it would be necessary to have ready statements as to what Canada might do in each of the numerous departments of manufacturing represented by that mission.

MEET VINCENT MASSEY

"We arrived in England at the beginning of August and met Vincent Massey, our high commissioner in England, on the first morning. The second morning we met a very representative group of the three fighting services and at the end of the meeting it was at once stated to us that tours would be arranged to all the strategic centers for the appropriate people in our group. Committee appointed embraced such subjects as guns, ammunition, bombs, chemicals, and motor transports.

"From that point on, all those who were in London met each morning. Mr. Ward, secretary of the Canadian Board of Trade in England, contributed invaluable secretarial help as the arrangements and routes, particularly with varying schedules, became very onerous.

"I probably saw less of the British plants than any other member in the group, for the reason that I had to spend much of my time in London; but it was while in London, with everybody else out of the city except Brigadier Carr, that an incident occurred which has had a pretty profound effect on my own plans ever since," the speaker said.

"The air ministry called up one morning and asked if we had a foundryman with us, and I replied that we had a "kind of a one'. They asked that a committee should visit the air ministry in Berkeley Square that morning for the purpose of conferring on a foundry problem. Brigadier Carr and I went down, and we were asked if we could produce the 500 lb. bomb in Canada.

REPORTS COMPLETED

"Our reports were completed and typed about the 25th of August, and by that time it had been decided to send an English Mission to Canada to further the investigation.

The majority of our people left for home the last week of August. Brigadier Carr, Mr. Ellis and myself stayed over to accompany back the English group who came out.

This group consisted of Admiral Addison as chairman; General Lock as vice-chairman (who subsequently acted as inspector general for the United Kingdom and Canada and the United States); Mr. Boddis as contracting officer (now with the British air commission in Washington); Mr. James Crone (now advisor to the production heads in Ottawa on certain technical matters); and Mr. Gordon, who has acted throughout in Canada as assistant to the inspector general and their secretarial staff.

"We heard the declaration of war thirteen hours after leaving Cherbourg, and we had a cold and somewhat anxious trip home through very northerly latitudes and on what was the last passenger trip of the Empress of Britain," said Mr. Gurney.

"My own experience since has not been unlike that of many another Canadian manufacturer, particularly those who were charged with the development of one of the government properties, and for that reason may be interesting to you.

"In early 1940 it was determined by the Canadian government that they would build a plant for the manufacture of aerial bombs to be a maximum size of 500 lbs. It is interesting that at this time this was the largest size in use in any aerial requirement.

LOCATION CHOSEN

"It was early determined that the best possible location from the standpoint of labor and power would appear to be Three Rivers, Quebec, and the theory in this partnership was that the Gurney company would bring to the project their knowledge of the repetition production of castings—which is a thing you learn if you make radiators—and that the Shawinigan company would contribute the special metallurgy involved in the problem and would also contribute their engineering organization as architects and engineers in the building of the plant.

"An office was opened in Montreal, and after much discussion on the thousands of details, we received definite advices to go ahead on the 24th of June, 1940, and broke ground at Cap de la Madeleine, on the outskirts of Three Rivers, on the 15th of August 1940.

"Important help was received from two or three of the outstanding foundry engineering people in the United States, but we actually built as fast as pencil drawings were completed, and we poured our first steel in February of the following year. By this time a staff had been gathered together from the two companies and elsewhere, and I can assure you that the first winter was even more strenuous and anxious than the later developments, and that is a strong statement!

200,000 PRODUCED

"This unit produced something over 200,000 of these bombs. They were made empty at Three Rivers and met fuses and explosives at another plant in Quebec, where they were loaded and assembled for overseas shipment. They went abroad in such shape that they could go directly to the armorers by division at the airfields of the R.A.F.

"During 1941 it became evident that the 3" trench mortar bombs were going to be required in very much larger quantities than had been foreseen in the first place. The 3" trench mortar fire the largest projectile where it is possible for the soldiers to transport the weapon without mechanical help, and this is one of the reasons that so much larger quantities were required.

"The same organization which prepared the plant for the 500 lb. bombs went through the same steps again, and another plant was laid down—part of the first, but entirely independent. On these trench mortar bombs, which weighed 10 lbs. apiece, production continued until a very recent date, averaging for many months some 6,000 a day, and something over 3,000,000 of these were made.

SUBSTITUTE SOUGHT

"With the cutting off of rubber in the Far East it became necessary to find a substitute for the track on which tanks operate, as track up to this time had carried a heavy percentage weight of rubber. A steel track of special alloys was developed and it was determined that electric steels should install a third unit for the purpose of producing these tracks and today this is the main product of the plant.

"Later, as more track was required, the 500 lb. bomb plant was converted to track production, for, with the advent of "block busters", much fewer of the 500 lb. bombs were required. The "block buster" is fabricated from plate and therefore is not a product of the foundry," said Mr. Gurney.

"The accomplishment has on the whole been good, and there have been two principal reasons for it. One is the complete devotion to the job that the average Canadian staff will give in wartime and the fact that a fine sense of "team play" has been developed in an important group of people who have had a good deal of satisfaction in doing this job. But there has been another very important factor, namely, the entire co-operation and support of the Department of Munitions and Supply in Ottawa. From the beginning, on every big issue, we have had the unqualified support of Mr. Howe's remarkable organization," he concluded.

Mr. Gurney was introduced by D. E. Mould. President A. M. MacDonald presided in the chair. Entertainment was provided by soloist J. Gish, a new Kiwanis club member inducted recently.

"New Deal" for U.S. Soldiers On Furlough

The United States government will pay transportation and ration expenses of servicemen going on leave from stations in the Alaskan Wing, Air Transport Command, U.S.A.A.F., to one of five cities in United States, according to an article in the latest edition of Uncle Sam's official publication of the Wing.

Under the new policy, men will be furnished all-rail transportation from their permanent station to one of the following cities nearest the man's destination: Fort Sheridan, Ill.; Fort Douglas Utah; Minneapolis, Minn.; Great Falls, Mont.; and Seattle, Wash.

Furlough time for the men will commence the day they leave one of these five points, not when they leave their permanent station, and terminates when they report back to that point.

When passenger space is available, soldiers will be authorized to travel by military aircraft from their permanent station to the point of departure in the United States.

Canadian service men recently received good news regarding furlough rates on railroads. The Department of National Defence announced that a maximum railway fare of $15 return would be in effect for all members of the armed services going on annual, embarkation or disembarkation leave.

This will be good news to men stationed a long way from home. To go from one end of Canada to the other and return will cost only $15. Other rates now under $15 will remain unchanged.

Club Will Send Smokes Overseas

The Cosmopolitan Club at its regular Monday luncheon meeting at the Corona voted to send 100,000 cigarettes to The Loyal Edmonton Regiment and 50,000 cigarettes to the City of Edmonton Squadron overseas through the Overseas Tobacco League.

President C. G. Tanney, who has just returned from the east, presided as chairman and reported on a recent meeting in Springfield of the board of Cosmopolitan International.

Among the guests present were Jack Randall, president of the Calgary Cosmopolitan Club, who spoke briefly on the activities of the Calgary club.

Announcement was made that there will be a parade of Cosmopolitan Clubs members and their wives at the morning service at Garneau United Church, Sunday, June 4.

Constant Check Kept on All Men Liable to Call-Up

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell said yesterday in the Commons that a constant check had to be maintained by Selective Service on men in the age groups liable to compulsory military service but every effort was made to see farming operations were not interfered with.

Mr. Mitchell said questions had been asked in the house about farm workers being called for medical examinations. When men were called they generally were not absent from home for more than a day, and no further orders calling out those coming of age would go out until June 1 when another group became callable.

Persons engaged in agriculture are granted deferments of military training.

Scores Scoop

Tommy Hays, manager of the Barn Ballroom, who has scored a "scoop" in the realm of dancing by engaging the Durham All-Star Girl Orchestra here for a two-day engagement at the Barn, May 31 and June 1.

Girl Orchestra Here Next Week

There are not many attractions in the entertainment field that possess the versatility that abounds "Eddie" Durham and His All-Star Girl Orchestra. The greatest aggregation of musical girls, led by the talented Durham, to appear at the Barn Ballroom, Edmonton, May 31 and June 1 all can double on another instrument, sing and dance, give class to a band that critics have voiced praise to the extent of selecting it as one possessing musical adroitness.

When many of the nation's leading bands were torn to shreds because of Uncle Sam's demand that all able-bodied men answer the call to the colors, many of the pretty young things who used to do chores in the home, came in for jobs as musicians. Not so with "Eddie" Durham's All-Star Girl Orchestra. Durham's gingervating, glamorous, gorgeous gals have long been identified with the music world and, it is a fact that they have always been morale builder-uppers—but, definitely!

A collection of pulchritude, 16 sweethearts on parade the Durham Girl Orchestra have plenty of "ting" when it comes to "swing."

Council Votes $1,250 To Assist City of Edmonton Squadron Fund

Comforts for the City of Edmonton Squadron will be supplied through a central committee established by vote of council on which will serve three members nominated by the Lions Club, and three by the city council.

It is proposed to start a trust fund to be known as the City of Edmonton Squadron Trust Fund, sponsored by the Lions Club of Edmonton and the City of Edmonton. The objective of this fund will be to raise $10,000 for sending of comforts to members of the squadron.

City Council Monday night voted $1,250 to the fund. This contribution will bring to $1,500 the amount donated by the city for comforts for the personnel of the squadron.

Offer to sponsor the fund for sending comforts to the squadron was made by the Lions Club as part of its war effort.

The entire proceeds of the fund will be distributed in comforts for the personnel of the squadron as required with a projected annual disbursement of from $4,000 to $6,000.

A six men committee will administer the fund. This committee shall have power to add temporary or permanent advisory members and shall be vested with the exclusive privilege to use or permit the use of the words "In aid of the City of Edmonton Squadron Fund."

During the discussion of the establishing of this fund the question of holding carnivals on the Market Square was discussed at length, and it was decided that all applications for use of the square for such purpose be denied in the future.

This action was taken following the receipt of a petition from stallholders using the market building. It was stated that the holding of a carnival on the square adversely affected business.

GIVES REPORT

C. J. Ingran, superintendent of the city market, reported that after carnivals on the market square last year nails, glass, corn-cobs, etc., were left on the grounds and had to be cleared up. He also stressed the opposition of stall holders and pointed out that considerable congestion of traffic took place during the period the carnival was in operation.

Aldermen took the view that to grant use of the square to one organization for carnival purposes meant that all applying should be entitled to similar treatment, and therefore they decided to ban future carnivals on the square.

Requests Minister Not to Delay Bill For Floor Prices

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—E. E. Perley (P.C.-Qu'Appelle) said last night in the Commons that Agricultural Minister Gardiner should present this week the government's proposed legislation for fixing floor prices for farm products.

Mr. Gardiner had stated he was leaving next Saturday to participate in the Saskatchewan provincial election.

"I believe before he goes west he should give us the floor prices bill so that we will know what it is all about," said Mr. Perley.

He said he felt that there should be no ceiling on farm prices, but there should be a floor under them.

Maj. Gen. R. O. Alexander, D.S.O., recently appointed inspector general of the Canadian Army in Western Canada arrived in Edmonton Tuesday to take over his post. He succeeds Maj.-Gen. J. P. Alexander took over the post of inspector-general for Central Canada, July 1, 1942.

Seek Extra Space For Health Board

Resurvey of office facilities in the civic block to provide extra space for the Edmonton Board of Health was ordered by the city council Monday night.

Request for the resurvey came from the Board of Health in the form of a resolution passed at a recent meeting of that body. In this it was pointed out that there was inadequate space in the waiting room at the inoculation clinic, and that it was of the utmost importance to the health of the children of the city that extra space for this clinic be provided.

Ald. H. D. Anlay said that he had received reports that the overcrowding in the civic block was endangering people's health, while Ald. R. Winslow Hamilton said that it had been reported to him that many parents declined to send their children to the inoculation clinic because of the danger of catching disease in the congested waiting room.

Ald. Hamilton said that the clinic was performing a valuable service to citizens, but that service was minimized, and in many cases nullified because parents were reductant to avail themselves of the service.

Ald. Anlay was of the opinion that the proposed survey would reveal that space in the civic block was being used for purposes not entirely of a civic nature, and asked for a specific report on this when the commissioners completed their survey.

Abolition of Rental Control Regulations To Be Sought

Member Famous "Flying Millers" Team Thinks Son is "Swell Guy"

Meeting his 9-month-old son, whom he thinks is a "pretty swell little guy," for the first time, FO. G. N. "Lefty" Miller, one half of the famous "Flying Millers" team of the City of Edmonton Squadron, arrived home early Tuesday morning.

Met at the station by his wife and family, "Lefty" was of the opinion that "it's great to be home again."

"Mosquito bombers are absolutely tops and having an aircraft like that certainly helps a lot in running up a score of enemy craft destroyed such as the boys of the City of Edmonton Squadron have," he said.

"Lefty" and his observer, FO. G. D. Miller of Vancouver, made trip after trip over the continent without encountering an enemy plane and without even seeing one they "could shoot up on the ground."

On the night of April 12 this year they finally hit the "jackpot." Ranging far over Axis territory on a 1,200-mile sweep, the Millers destroyed two enemy aircraft and damaged others.

Northeast of Berlin almost on the Baltic they shot down an unidentified twin-engined aircraft and severely damaged an HE111 and HE177.

"Lefty's" score stands at two planes destroyed, two "probables," and three and a half damaged. "I haven't anything much to tell," the young pilot said, "but just wait till some of the other Edmonton fellows get home, they really have some stories."

Flier Returns

FO. G. N. "Lefty" Miller, one of the "Flying Millers" of the City of Edmonton squadron of Mosquito intruder bombers, arrived home Tuesday morning after more than a year overseas.

Born at Virden, Man., "Lefty" came to Edmonton when he was six years old and was educated at Oliver, Westmount and Garneau High schools.

A ski enthusiast, he was a member of the Eskimo Ski Club here, and was active in other sports.

Enlisting in the R.C.A.F., November, 1940, he trained at Lethbridge and Regina and received his wings at Dauphin, Manitoba. He took an instructor's course at Trenton and was stationed at Mossbank for one year before going overseas in 1942.

JOINS SQUADRON

After O.T.U. in England he joined the squadron of Mosquito intruder bombers which later become the City of Edmonton squadron.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Miller of the Dunstan apartments and his wife and son live at 10710 110 street.

After a month's leave "Lefty" will return to Eastern Canada for a six-month tour of duty.

City Prepares For Observance Of Empire Day

Thousands of Edmonton residents Tuesday were hoping weather conditions would improve so that they might be able to carry out holiday plans. The majority of stores and offices will be closed in observance of the 125th anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria, May 24.

Offices remaining open Wednesday will be those of the Dominion government and the banks. All retail stores, warehouses, provincial and civic offices will close.

Special celebrations will be lacking this year. The majority of residents have arranged trips to summer resorts, hikes, picnics and golf matches. Due to poor weather conditions in the last two days, the Briercrest Riding Academy has postponed a meet scheduled for the holiday. Officials said the soft ground made it impossible to hold the event.

The Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce picnic will be held at the Muncipal Golf Links at 2:30 p.m. and it is expected hundreds will attend. The committee has arranged races and baseball games.

The Highlands Golf Club has arranged two special matches for its members. A two-ball foursome match for men will start at 9 a.m. and a mixed two-ball foursome competition is scheduled for 2 p.m.

SPORTS DAY

Jasper Place community has arranged for a special sports day, including races and baseball games, for their recreation grounds.

The Arrows and Dodgers baseball teams in the Edmonton senior league will swing into action at the Renfrew Park grounds at 7 p.m. in the second league game this season.

Special lawn bowling matches also have been arranged at the various greens.

Railway and bus lines were anticipating "a big day" as Edmontonians planned trips to nearby towns and resorts.

Annual Feeders' Day To Be June 3

Arrangements have been completed for the annual Feeders' Day to be held at the Lavesdon Pavilion, University Farm, on Saturday, June 3, commencing at 10 a.m. and continuing throughout the day. Lunch will be available at noon.

The proceedings will include reports on the various livestock experiments that have been completed during the year, and in view of the current interest in the production of animals and animal products, this should provide a profitable day for farmers and feeders.

An invitation is extended to all those who may be interested.

Home Owners Association Complains to City Council Present Plan "Impossible"

Resolution from the Home Owners of Edmonton Association seeking the abolition of rental control regulations in the city was referred to the bylaws committee for consideration and report.

Request that the resolution be sent to a standing committee of the city council was made by A. L. Marks, K.C., spokesman for the association. Mr. Marks informed council that home owners and tenants of homes were members of the association. A large delegation appeared in the council chamber in connection with this matter.

Headed by a four paragraph preamble the following resolution was submitted from the association to council:

We, the undersigned property owners of the city of Edmonton, respectfully suggest that the present rent control regulations, as to housing, be abolished, and that provision be made for freely made arrangements between landlords and tenants of housing accommodation, subject only to the following conditions:

MAKE OWN TERMS

1—As to homes (embracing all those cases designated in the present regulations as "shared accommodation"), the parties themselves be permitted to make their own arrangements, and that landlords and tenants clear through voluntary rental committees in the various specified districts, into which the city would be divided.

2—All other housing accommodation to be subject to agreement between the parties, provided that every lease of housing accommodation, other than "shared accommodation," be subject to arbitration in case of any disagreement, the award in each case to be final and binding upon the parties.

Mr. Marks submitted that rental control was not necessary, but is a matter that can be safely left to interested parties, as it was in the last war.

He said that rental control regulations as framed were impossible economically because they do not differentiate between low-income families of the armed forces, and high income war workers' families. And psychologically because homes are not commodities like potatoes and coal, but involve all the imponderables relating to close personal relations.

HELD INEQUITABLE

He said rental control was inequitable, unequal in application, and was dependent upon the hasty valuations of unskilled valuators. The regulations were difficult to understand and interpret, and subjected the person making any mistake in interpretation to a fine or other unjust penalty, and were essentially contrary to the spirit of voluntary war effort, Mr. Marks stated.

He said that the control was defeating its avowed purpose and cited the results of a ballot taken by the Home Protective Association which showed that because of the rental control regulations owners of 35 rooms, 2 suites and 37 house keeping rooms had declined to rent this space.

All-Time Record Set Primrose Day

Contributions to the Junior Red Cross on the annual Primrose Day campaign Saturday reached an "all time record," with $3,931.33 collected, Robert Muir, secretary manager of the Canadian Red Cross Society, announced Tuesday.

This represents an increase of about $500 over last year's high total.

Individual taggers who had the highest collections were: Rose Dalinko, first place; Grace Gerow, 2nd place and Helen Kamininsky, third place.

The primroses distributed by the taggers were the result of the efforts of Junior Red Cross workers and the proceeds are for the crippled children of Alberta.

Mrs. S. Israel was convener for the campaign, a job she has been in charge of for the last five years.

Police Checking Reports of Thefts

City police were told early this week of the disappearance of a canoe from the Eskimo Ski Club, together with the theft of a quantity of articles from another small watercraft on the river.

Owner of the first boat, Pansy Strange, 11782 97 street, informed officers that the boat had been chained and padlocked to a rack on the north side of the river. Three paddles also disappeared, she said.

Two knapsacks, two cameras, two swim trunks, two canoe cushions and a flashlight were taken out of another canoe owned by Ben Atkins, 10049 114 street.

Interview Room Is Nearly Completed

Alteration of a portion of the detective division, city police headquarters, to create a private interview room, is about completed. There was an interview room provided when the building was built, but this was entirely surrounded by offices, with no system of natural lighting or fresh air reaching it. The new office is located in the northwest corner of the ground floor of the building.

Boys Kill Birds

Actions of a group of boys who killed birds with slingshots, who robbed nests of eggs and who killed young birds found in nests, were reported to city police from the vicinity of 118 avenue and 71 street, Monday afternoon.

Rain Provides Assistance For Northern Fires

Light intermittent rain fell in the Grande Prairie area in the last 24 hours, and has "materially helped" the forest fire situation there, T. F. Bletgen, provincial forestry director, said Tuesday morning.

The rainfall in the fire area was not as heavy as in Edmonton, where .66 of an inch of rain fell in the 24-hour period. Precipitation in the north was as follows: Fairview, .06 of an inch; Fort St. John, .33; Peace River, .14 and Wagner, .08.

Edmonton's weather forecast for the next 24 hours is "Cloudy, intermittent rain or showers, becoming partly cloudy at night."

Estimated high temperature for Tuesday is 57 degrees, with 45 the estimated low. At 8:30 a.m., the temperature was 47 degrees.

While the weather man is not ready yet to release his predictions for Empire Day, May 24, below are some weather facts and figures on May 24 since 1913:

Since that date, the average maximum temperature for the holiday has been 68.5 degrees. Highest temperature ever recorded was 86 degrees, in 1940, with the lowest in 1918 and 1932, when 32 degrees was recorded.

Average rainfall on the holiday since 1913 is .66 of an inch. Heaviest rain was in 1920, when .82 of an inch fell, and in 1918, .49 of an inch of snow fell.

In the total of 31 years, there have been 9.6 hours of sunshine on May 24.

The weather forecast for Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday is, "cloudy, light rain tonight, becoming partly cloudy, with afternoon showers Wednesday, cooler tomorrow."

The estimated low for tonight is 37 degrees and the estimated high tomorrow is 57 degrees. The temperature at 2:30 p.m. was 49 degrees.

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the proposal to hold a fall racing meet in Edmonton, Aug. 1 to 10?

THE ANSWERS

BILL CRAWFORD, government inspector: I'm all for it. Other western cities have carried on with both their spring and fall meets and I think we could certainly stand one here. Even at the British Isles racing meets have been carried on to some extent to take people's minds off the war. Since the exhibition association has made the necessary arrangements I can't see any reason for not holding the meet.

MARION BROWN, stenographer: I don't play the ponies myself but I think the meet would be a good thing for the people who enjoy the races. After all, people are going to spend what little spare cash they have anyway, so why not let them spend it the way they want? It has been a long time since we've had a meet here and it would certainly make a lot of people happy.

JOHN MacDIARMAID, engineer: I hope it gets city approval because I'm looking forward to it already. If they hold it I'll be out there enjoying myself — win or lose. After all, it's a harmless way to spend money and a pretty fair percentage of the "take" goes to the government anyway.

Transferred

Ingar Telmer, home furnishings department manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, whose official transfer to the general manager's office of the Hudson Bay House, Winnipeg, was announced Tuesday. He will leave for Winnipeg in the near future. No successor has as yet been named. A native of Norway, he joined the staff of the Hudson Bay House at Winnipeg in 1929, soon after his arrival in Canada, and has been with the firm since then. In Edmonton since 1931, he has been an active member of the Kiwanis Club, serving as vice-president this year, and as one of the directors of the Kiwanis Children's Aid Society, as well as in the Kiwanis Glee Club. He has also been chairman in charge of the women's organizations in the Fifth and Sixth Victory Loan campaigns.

Surviving are Mrs. Ingle; two daughters, Mrs. John Stubb of Stony Plain, and Mrs. Malcolm MacIvor of Edmonton; three brothers, Samuel of Los Angeles, Leonard of Stony Plain, and Arthur of Jasper; two sisters, Mrs. Clara Cross and Mrs. Neil Gordon, both of this city; five grandchildren and seven great grandchildren. Burial took place Tuesday at Mount Pleasant cemetery. Funeral services were held at 2 p.m. from Hainstock's chapel, with T. T. Reikie officiating.

McKenney On Bridge

By WM. E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

The first five players in the Masters individual world championship this year were Corp. Geo. Rapee, Robert Chatkin, Murray DeLeeuw, B. J. Becker and Lee Hazeltall of New York. The most-talked-of hand in the tournament probably was board 13 of the fourth session, shown today.

The bidding varied somewhat but practically every East-West pair arrived at a six-heart contract. In most cases, the nine of diamonds was opened, declarer won with the ace, cashed the ace of hearts and ace of spades, led a small heart and took the finesse. When it held, the king of hearts was played, picking up the queen. Then a diamond was played, South winning.

Now at three different tables, declarer claimed the balance of the tricks. Remember that the participants in this tournament were 36 selected players of the country, and believe it or not, at two tables the opponents conceded the slam.

The hand had what it called a "blind spot." Declarer's deuce of diamonds was discarded on the king of spades, but there was only one trump left, which could not ruff both the diamond and the spade. At Samuel Stayman's table, he refused to concede and, of course, the declarer went down one.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Letter Writing Is Hazardous Venture

War Brings New Perils to Correspondence School; Love-Making Same as Playing With TNT, Having Fatal Results

It is, of course, known to all and sundry, as Damon Runyon would say, that letter writing is not the innocuous pastime it is believed by the unthoughtful to be. On the contrary, it is a diversion that is about as dangerous as playing with TNT and as likely to blow you to Kingdom Come. For you never can tell when a missive is going to explode into Exhibit A in a breach of promise suit, or you are going to be called on to make good on the sentiments in Exhibit B that you never expected to be taken seriously.

INK STARTS WRITING JAG

Many strange and inexplicable phenomena are connected with letter writing. One is that just dipping into the ink seems to send the average man and woman into a jag in which they write indiscreet things they would never have been foolish enough to have said. Ordinarily they are level-headed people, with their feet on the ground, but the sight of a clean sheet of white paper, tempts them to soar amidst the pink clouds of romance and to indite the most emotional which they are far from feeling.

They know the folly of this. They know that we write letters at our own risk, and that while the spoken word goes in one ear and out of the other, a scrap of paper can last for a hundred years and be a witness against them. Yet, for all of this, girls will go on addressing boys in letters as "my heart's idol" because they have really forgotten the lad's name, and boys will swear in black and white that Angeline is the only girl in the world for them, just to fill in the space at the bottom of the page.

Even in peace time letter writing is a hazardous sport, but the war has added new perils to it, for it has started a School of Correspondence Love-making that is having fatal results. At the beginning of the war the young women of the country were urged to get into correspondence with the boys in the service, and whether they knew them or not, write them bright and cheery letters to break the strain of life at the front.

WRITERS GO SENTIMENTAL

It was a grand idea. The girls leaped to their typewriters as one woman, and all went well as long as they stuck to neighborhood gossip and the last movie and asking their correspondent whether he would like them to knit him a sweater or a pair of socks, and he responded in kind, with his opinion of the Sarge and the camp cook. But the curse of the letter writer was on them and they couldn't escape it. They had to go sentimental and romantic and to imagine themselves in love with boys and girls whom they had never seen.

Apparently Cupid shoots just as well with the pen as he used to with the dart, for thousands of our doughboys and gobs have become engaged to ready letter writers and are preparing to take on mail order brides on the most furnished home, which would be well enough, perhaps, if marriage was going to be conducted by correspondence and not in person.

But, alas, such is not the case. In marriage individuality counts more than all the letters, and my guess is that there will be plenty of trouble a-cooking when these letter-writing lovers meet for the first time.

Eleanor Roosevelt

MY DAY

WASHINGTON—Sunday was the 30th observance of Mother's Day. It is a pleasant gesture, and this year it is a particularly significant one. War has placed new responsibilities upon mothers, greater sacrifices are demanded of them, and whether they are young or old, their lives are much more difficult. I wish that we could celebrate a Parent's Day, for it seems to me that in this country what we really think about is the home, which is created by the parents. Nevertheless, I hope this Mother's Day will bring to many mothers a sense of the important position which they hold in the life of the country, and that the praise and honor accorded them will compensate for the hardships and anxieties which they are courageously enduring.

I have just received a pamphlet which claims to have found a satisfactory solution to racial relations. The gentleman who is the author of it would like to take one of our minority groups and transport all its members to another land. He would have us build roads there and give them equipment and trained personnel to start them off. This would remove much manpower, at present employed in our country. But to the author of this pamphlet, this means a real solution.

I am afraid that this could never be a permanent solution, because if we decided to move one minority group and settle it some other part of the world, why shouldn't we decide to do the same thing with another group with which we found it difficult to get along at some time or other?

We have among us a number of groups which some of our people would undoubtedly like to remove to other parts of the world on occasion. If we begin this, it would seem quite logical to me to go on, and I wonder just where we would stop dividing up our nation. Perhaps it would come about that we would eventually segregate our country to those who originally owned it, the Indians, whom we have now more or less segregated on reservations.

Quite seriously, however, I wonder if the problem does not go deeper. Isn't our real problem how to get along with all the people who make up the citizenry of the United States at the present time, in the places where they live? Isn't it necessary to face getting on with people all over the world who are going to be our very close neighbors in the future, and who are going to come and go and trade with us and live among us now and then?

They may learn much from us, and they may want to teach us many things also. If this is going to happen, and it must happen if there is going to be peace in the world, I wonder if my correspondent, who would deport any group he considered undesirable here, has considered how the bigger problem would ever be solved?

McCoy Health Service

Prostatic disorders are common in men past forty and should receive attention earlier than it is usually given them. As a general rule, the patient delays treatment until the symptoms cause considerable discomfort. The prostate gland in men surrounds the neck of the bladder and the urethra and is made up of three lobes, being composed of both muscular and glandular tissue. An enlargement of the prostate may cause an obstruction at the neck of the bladder which interferes with the emptying of the liquid waste from this storage sac. The symptoms are chiefly those resulting from such interference and vary in different cases, a great deal depending upon what portion of the prostate is enlarged and whether a comparatively slight enlargement may serve to cause considerable obstruction when the enlargement occurs in certain lobes. The early certain directions, while a very large prostate may, on the other hand, cause no symptoms whatever.

The chief symptoms of enlargement of the prostate are those resulting from the retention of the fluid from the kidneys which has been stored frequently several times during the night to empty the bladder. Pain, sensation in the bladder, or difficulty in completely emptying the organ, are common symptoms. The patient usually develops bladder irritation, or cystitis, due to the decomposition of the fluid which is retained because of incomplete emptying. The urethral orifice may be closed, requiring catheterization. The resulting cystitis may extend upward until it reaches the kidney.

A differentiation should be made between the prostate which is congested and that which is inflamed; in the latter case, prostatitis or inflammation of the prostate, may be said to be present.

The treatment to be use must necessarily depend upon the individual case. When the obstruction at the neck of the bladder is not pronounced such measures as the application of heat, massage, and the adoption of a better diet, following a short fast, may produce satisfactory relief. Heat may be applied at home through the use of the hot Sitz bath, or through using rectal irrigation, allowing the warm water to run in and out. Electrical heat as secured by the use of the diathermy is an effective treatment in many cases; however, this treatment is to be obtained in a doctor's office, as also is massage of the gland. The bladder irritation will often yield to copious water drinking, early in the day, which dilutes the fluid contained in the bladder.

Severe cases are best handled through surgery, whereby a portion of the prostate gland is removed; or, if an operation is contraindicated, by catheterization.

In a percentage of cases, the patient will thoroughly respond to treatment if he will only follow the advice of his physician.

The word miniature has been confused with minimum, and the result is that we think a miniature is always a small edition of something. The truth is that the name is derived from the kind of paint used by artists, and has no reference to the size of the object painted. The kind of paint used was minium (red lead). It is true that many portraits were done on small pieces of ivory, metal or vellum and the original miniatures were mostly small pictures—but the name itself had nothing to do with the size and referred only to the kind of paint used.

tient with a prostatic involvement becomes irritable or mentally depressed or may lack confidence or become prone to worry. Fortunately, these symptoms disappear when the prostate is relieved.

A careful examination is required when the prostate is suspected of causing distress and the diagnosis should not be given hastily, but should only be made after all of the findings of the examination have been considered.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

It's time for a family reunion with lamb.

If some members of the family think they don't like lamb, try cooking it with some pungent barbecue sauce, or rub the roast with a clove of garlic or onions, or serve as a fricasse or in patties with plenty of onion and herbs. You'll find that most objections are based on the odor of lamb cooking, not on the taste or consistency.

LAMB BREAST BARBECUED

(Serves 4-6)

Two pounds breast of lamb, 1 medium onion, ½ cup chili sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, ¼ teaspoon red pepper, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 cup water.

Cut lamb into five pieces. Season with salt and pepper. Place in a hot skillet and let fatty sides get brown. Mix chili sauce, red pepper, vinegar and water. Pour over lamb. Slice onion and add to the mixture. Cover. Simmer 1½ hours, then remove lid. Cook on medium heat for 20 minutes or until barbecue sauce is almost absorbed.

To give roast lamb the taste extolled at present many demand, serve with a mint sauce, tart jelly, chutney or chow chow. For cold sliced lamb, supply Worcestershire sauce, horseradish, or homemade spiced tomato catsup.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Tomato and grapefruit juice, oatmeal, whole milk, enriched toast, apple butter, Coffee, milk.

LUNCH: Cream of split pea soup, soya crackers, peanut butter and grated carrot sandwich (enriched bread), stewed fruit, iced tea, milk or buttermilk.

DINNER: Barbecued breast of lamb, creamed potatoes, tossed greens salad, French dressing, whole wheat bread, butter, strawberries with whole milk or light cream, oatmeal cookies, coffee, milk.

Minute Make-Ups

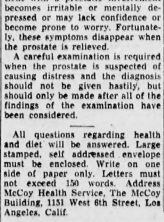

Dark lipsticks make the mouth look "luscious" and make the teeth look whiter. The blue-reds are very flattering to the small mouth. Yellow-reds are good only when worn by redheads and even then they are not too flattering. Deep, fruity reds are especially becoming to the "big" mouth and rose-reds are prettiest on the "little girl" types.

4-Year Bacon Deal Arranged With Britain

Kingdom in 1943 were borne by Canada under mutual aid arrangements.)

ALSO OTHER CONTRACTS

In addition to the proposed four-year bacon contract, Canada had a two-year contract for the sale of eggs and a two-year contract for cheese. Both contracts were for prices higher than previous contracts, he said.

Mr. Gardiner said he had expected to be able to announce terms of the agreement to the house previously but it was not signed although negotiated. It might be changed in some details.

Shipments of bacon to the United Kingdom in the last four years have been: 1940 contract, 320,000,000 pounds; 1941 contract, 440,000,000 pounds; 1942 contract, 600,000,000 pounds; 1943 contract, 675,000,000 pounds.

Last fall, Mr. Gardiner announced that a contract had been made for the shipment of not less than 900,000,000 pounds of bacon to the United Kingdom in 1944 and 1945.

RESTRICTION CLAIMED

Last night he said there had been an "agitation" saying that Canada was restricting the supply of bacon to the United Kingdom.

But the experience had been that 77 per cent of the 500,000,000 pounds required as a minimum for the United Kingdom this year already had been purchased by the meat board, although the fifth month of the year was not finished.

"We are well on the way to supplying Britain this year with the whole quantity of 900,000,000 pounds which we agreed to supply her in two years," said Mr. Gardiner.

"If we get our later increase in hog marketings in proportion to increases in marketing in past years, we will find it necessary to market nearly the full quantity in the first year rather than wait for the second year."

AMOUNT SUPPLIED

(On the basis of figures given the House by Mr. Gardiner, Canada has supplied the United Kingdom with 2,045,000,000 pounds of bacon in the last four years. If, as the minister said was possible, 900,000,000 pounds of bacon are shipped in 1944, almost half the four-year contract would be met in the first year.)

Mr. Gardiner said that because of the four-year bacon contract in prospect there was no reason for farmers even to think of having marketings for a considerable part of hog production for years.

He said any agreement entered into with the United Kingdom or anyone else it had to be remembered that Canadian consumers had to be considered. In the post-war period there must be consideration of the interchange of goods producing products similar to those of Canada.

"We have parity prices on all farm products and better than parity prices on most products," said Mr. Gardiner. Those who have opposed the government to establish parity prices were suggesting that the government go backward.

Farm income in 1932 was $383,000,000 and in 1943 it was $1,396,000,000. And in 1943 Ontario had the poorest crop in history. The farmers' income in 1944 would probably be "Hundreds of millions of dollars" higher than in 1943.

BASED ON 1915-1919

Robert Fair (S.C., Battle River) said parity prices should be based on the period of 1915-1919 when the farmers received one-third of the national income. At present the parity prices were based on the period of 1926-1929 when the farmers received only one-sixth of the income.

P. E. Wright (C.C.F., Meifort) said farmers had to fight to get their present-day prices.

Earlier, Mr. Gardiner said that the export of Canadian livestock to the United States simply would complicate the feeding problem already severe in that country.

Answering questions by opposition members during discussion of his department's $25,000,000 appropriation estimates, the minister said:

1. He was glad to hear members state the real difficulty was in handling the food produced by Canada. Earlier in the war they had expressed doubt that food could be produced in the amounts required.

2. Marketing records indicated that farmers had not slaughtered their breed cows as some opposition members had suggested. The percentage of high quality hogs marketed compared favorably with other years.

KEEP BREEDING STOCK

3. Farmers had not killed off their breeding stock in the fall of 1943, because today there were as many hogs that the problem was in slaughtering and processing them.

4. Farmers' representatives had been placed on government boards early in the war. They were men born and raised on farms who had been trained for administrative work. The opposition seemed to think that when a man was employed by the government he ceased to be a farmer.

"Just the same, the agriculture department has a beef-producing job in Alberta and I'll have more to say later about that," said J. H. Blackmore, Social Credit house leader.

"So will I," said Mr. Gardiner.

Mr. Gardiner cited figures on livestock marketings in the United States and said that packing plants congestion in Canada was paralleled across the border.

URGES MORE IMPLEMENTS

P. E. Wright (C.C.F.-Meifort) urged that the production of farm implements be increased. The government had promised to increase production but results of any increase were not yet apparent in Western Canada, at least.

He suggested that sale of coarse grain should be placed in the hands of the Canadian Wheat Board. The board now was handling wheat and flax and its jurisdiction should be extended to cover other grains which were being sold by speculators.

The premium paid to producers of malted barley should be increased from five cents a bushel to at least 15 cents a bushel, said Mr. Wright. The premium in the United States was from 20 to 30 cents a bushel.

NOT PAID IN U.S.

Howard Winkler (L., Lisgar) said he found that a premium on malting barley was not being paid in the United States.

Mrs. D. W. Nielsen (Unity-North Battleford) said Canada's food quotas should not be judged on ability of the people to buy the products, but on the amount of food needed to provide good health for all.

Canada should take "a very strong position" on all the boards of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration and in all matters pertaining to the lifting of trade relations with food producing countries.

G. H. Castleden (C.C.F., Yorkton) said that western farmers who had fed their cattle until their feed was finished had been told that the cattle could not be handled by packing plants, due to congestion.

LOWER PRICES OFFERED

But lower prices for these cattle had been offered by agents visiting farms.

"So long as the packing industry continues to control the purchase of livestock the farmer cannot hope for redress or a proper return for his labor," said Mr. Castleden.

About 148,000 hogs had gone to the Winnipeg market which could not be handled there, he said. They had to be shipped to eastern plants with consequent loss to the producer.

"What is needed is orderly marketing, with information going out to the producers about the capacity of packing plants and the number of animals which can be handled," said Mr. Castleden.

FARMERS TAKE LOSS

Hogs lost grade when they had to be held over for marketing facilities and Mr. Castleden said he wondered why the farmers had to take the loss because there were insufficient facilities to handle their production.

The producer would be assisted in setting up his own livestock shipping and processing organization. The farmers would have to build their own packing plants. "It's the only thing left for them to do."

Synagogue Fire Deliberately Set, States Detective

QUEBEC, May 23—(CP)—Detective Chief Laureat Lacasse of the provincial police force said yesterday he was "sure" that the fire which did considerable damage to the new Jewish Uptown synagogue was set "by criminals." Chief Lacasse said police are still investigating the case and that constables will continue to stand guard around the synagogue. He did not elaborate. The fire at the synagogue started a few hours before the scheduled dedication of the temple.

Strong Nazi Forces Routed by French

NAPLES, May 22.—(CP)—The French forces of Gen. Alphonse Juin were disclosed yesterday to have faced and routed elements of four German divisions since the start of the Allied offensive in Italy. The French now are assaulting German positions in the area of Pontecorvo, one of the strong points of the Hitler line where it crosses the Liri valley.

Stock Markettings Also Heavy in U.S.

OTTAWA, May 22—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said yesterday in the commons that heavy livestock marketings had glutted processing facilities in the United States as well as in Canada and thus it was practically impossible for Canadian surpluses to be shipped across the border. United States figures on marketings showed farmers there had responded to appeals for increased production as had those in Canada.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

What does a parent expect of a 3-year-old? Does one imagine she has only to speak and the child will toe the mark?

The strange thing is that parents do expect just that. They do not want to take the time to "sell" the child on the desirability of good behavior; they want only to speak and to be obeyed.

"We have a 3-year-old daughter," writes Mrs. R. E., "and she is very hard to make mind. I have to tell her two or three times to do a thing and then it always ends up in a slap.

"Then she flies into a rage and assaes me and stamps her feet. I have whipped her but it only makes her worse. She has my nerves in such a state that I don't know what to do. I feel just like walking away from everything or I will have a breakdown. I could just sit and cry. She has an idea she is boss. It is too bad when a child of that age tries to run her parents. Please help me."

I'd like to. But I can do little until you rid your mind of such inflexible ideas as "I am boss." When it makes you nervous and near a breakdown because speaking to the child won't get obedience, it is you who need to change.

Keep in mind that the child has rights, too. There are things she wants to do her way, if you are flexible and reasonable she will be too. If you insist that every time you make a suggestion she has to fly to obey it, you will tug and pull against each other with the result you now suffer.

If a suggestion is important—and many are—then carry it through. You can bring her playfully to obedience if it is you want her. You can take away the objects she is mistreating. You can remove her from any situation in which she is misbehaving.

But to speak, expect her to come to heel like a puppy and slap and whip her if she doesn't, is to ignore the fact that you are dealing with a thinking, reasoning human being.

It is when you say and think, "I'm boss and she ought to know it," that you feel it necessary to enforce your bossiness a hundred times a day. And what you get is a natural rebellion against such a attitude.

It is give and take, even with children. Give them some liberty and some responsibility. Then they will enjoy the one and not rebel against the other.

Next week: "Obedience and Punishment," may be had by sending your request for it, together with a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Ladies' Auxiliary Spends $30 for War Effort

It was reported that $30 had been spent on wool for comforts for the boys, and two parcels had been sent to the Airmen bombed out areas this month, at the Army and Navy Vets L.A. meeting held recently in the I.O.O.F. Hall. It was decided to continue sending parcels to the boys.

Letters were received from some of the boys overseas, giving thanks for cigarettes sent them and also letters from boys in Canada thanking for knitted socks sent them.

Plans were made for a rummage sale to be held in the near future, proceeds of which will be used to send larger Christmas parcels to the boys overseas. Successful bingo and whist drives have been held recently.

It was decided to hold the June meeting in the Albert Avenue community hall and then discontinue until the fall.

Eleven-Year-Old Aims at Quartet

WINNIPEG, May 22 — (CP) — Joyce Trepel has three famous sisters but she isn't resting on their laurels. She is another member of a musical, Canadian family. Joyce is truly a chip off the old block.

At 11, Joyce appears to be on her way to prominence in the world of music. Playing with the poise of a veteran pianist, she recently captured the Alberta Swedish Musical Club trophy at the Manitoba Music Festival.

Her three sisters all are continuing with their music. Freda, now Mrs. B. Bookhalter of Regina, made her debut in New York's Town Hall last March in a piano recital. Anne, violinist, wife of Lieut. H. Smithen, gives charity performances. Shirley, cellist, is scholarship student of Gregor Piatigorsky in Philadelphia.

Joyce is looking forward to the day when the renowned Trepet trio will become a quartet.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

Maternity Now Lacks Frills

By MURIEL ADAMS

TORONTO, May 22—(CP)—Maternity and nursing homes in Britain are so crowded that women are advised to make reservations months in advance. That's the story for Britons but Canadian officers' wives until recently were given many of the comforts of home in a wing of the Canadian Military Hospital set aside for maternity cases only.

Canadian mothers-to-be usually stay at a guest house near the hospital for a short time preceding birth. Emergency transportation is a risky business in Britain right now. Your hospital room may not have cut flowers after the event, but you will probably be brought fresh plants and if you are lucky you may have a radio in your room.

According to a young Canadian mother recently returned from England there are lots of little things missing when it comes to having a baby so far away from home. There is no opportunity to go baby shopping and if you are going to have a baby trousseau it must be sent from Canada. There is none of the thrills of "baby talk" with friends back home. Most of her baby washings were done at 3 a.m., the only time when there was sufficient water at her disposal in the boarding house.

"CARRYCOTS" POPULAR

Babies don't disturb the activities of British women, she says. They whip up formulas in buses, waiting rooms, trains, almost anywhere. Mothers take their babies about in a "carrycot"—a foldable linoleum bassinette, with handles, easy to pack, keep clean and carry. Most difficult items to find in baby equipment are nipples.

"And of course there is no sweet, smelling baby powder and oil. But with all the lacks you see the most beautiful babies everywhere, and healthy, too," the war bride said.

Well-run baby clinics provide expert medical advice for everyone and baby foods are supplied at a minimum charge. Good powdered milks, tinned orange juice and ascorbic acid tablets are available for all babies.

EARLY TRAINING

British mothers belong to the school of thought which believes in training babies early. Small living quarters, washing and drying difficulties added to the limited clothing coupon allowance given prospective mothers make early training most desirable.

A baby is a great addition to an air raid shelter, the young Canadian mother said. "You just can't be nervous when you hear a soft coo or see a baby grin in the midst of tension. Bill, my baby, saw me through many a midnight scare."

Phyllis McAllister Is Married To FO. E. Benson Here Monday

At a fully choral service Monday evening in Knox United church, the wedding took place of Miss Edith Phyllis McAllister, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McAllister, and Flying Officer Eric Harold Alexander Benson, R.A.F., Transport Command, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet Benson, all of Edmonton. The Rev. Elgin G. Turnbull officiated.

The church was a veritable flower garden, arranged with ferns, lilac, apple blossoms and honeysuckle. The guest pews were marked with dainty pink tulle bows.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an heirloom gown of ivory duchess satin and Guipure lace. The finely tucked bodice of satin and lace was fashioned aurpice style, and long loose panels of lace, edged with satin, fell gracefully over the skirt. The latter finished in a slight train. High neckline and elbow length sleeves were other features of the bride's gown. She wore a full length veil of silk net, pearl embroidered and simply arranged with orange blossoms. Her veil followed the lines of her gown and swept to a slight train.

Completing her ensemble, the bride wore lace mitts and silver slippers, and carried a shower bouquet of Columbia roses and marguerites.

MATRON-OF-HONOR

Sister of the bridegroom, Mrs. George Johnson was matron-of-honor. She wore a slipper length ensemble of shell pink georgette trimmed with gold sequins, and fashioned on simple, princess lines. Her hat was a calot model, dainty with misty veiling, all of a shell pink shade, and she had long lace mitts. Her flowers consisted of an arm bouquet of deep pink carnations.

Miss Dorcas Wagner and Miss Jean McAllister were other attendants. The former was gowned in a buttercup yellow, toe-length frock, and the latter wore turquoise blue. Both dresses were styled on the same lines, with long torso bodices, full skirts, round necklines and balloon sleeves. The girls wore chapel veils to match their ensembles. Flowers held the veils in place. They had lace mittens and carried colonial bouquets.

Best man was Coder Walter B. Mackie, R.C.N.R., and ushered the guests to their places in the church were Cpl. William Tayler, R.C.A.F., - and Paul Greenwood. During the signing of the register, Jack Williams sang "My Prayer," and Mrs. Betty Sims was at the console of the organ.

KNITTED SUIT

Wearable and packable is this pin-striped navy wool knit suit which resembles tweed and tailors with all the firmness of a woven fabric.

Mrs. Consumer Complimented

Launched to a good start is "Mrs Consumer Week" with women throughout the province sharing in the special program of anti-inflation meetings. Mrs. Frank J. Conroy, chairman of the Women's Regional Advisory Committee of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board in Alberta reports that special Mrs. Consumer Kits have been sent on request, to all local groups affiliated with national organizations, to all municipal and primary chapters of the I.O.D.E. and to each of 390 branches of the Canadian Red Cross Society in Alberta, on order from Mrs. E. D. Lent, secretary of provincial work orders at Calgary headquarters.

In addition a number of public libraries have arranged special "Thank You, Mrs. Consumer" displays. On view in Edmonton is a special poster showing just what Mrs. Consumer's war job is. Typical of Canadian women buyers is the alert young matron, with a guard on her purse strings against unnecessary spending, a contributor to war savings through Victory Loans and War Savings Certificates. Saluting her are representatives of Canada's war services, who in the firing line, are grateful that she is guarding stability on the home front line.

In Alberta cities, big department stores and community shops have arranged special window displays to show the result of Mrs. Consumer's regard for the five point program . . . wage control in which she gets along under heavier wartime taxation, price control, which has Mrs. Report, distribution control, and her contribution to war savings. The story told in these displays shows that Mrs. Consumer has earned her thanks.

C.N. Railway Will Not Use Women on Diners

Women are being used in the Canadian National Railway cafe cars on the Halifax-Sydney and the Halifax-St. John runs in Nova Scotia owing to the extreme labor shortage in Eastern Canada.

C.N.R. officials here said Tuesday that women will not be employed on the dining cars owing to the fact that so far the railway has been able to get sufficient help for this service and the dining cars have not yet been in service in the west on account of the longer runs the C.N.R. makes

Swift's Summer Suppers

Tasty, appetizing, nutritious and easy-to-prepare Swift's Table-Ready Meats are the answer to a wartime housewife's prayer

There's nothing so colourful as a tastefully arranged platter of sliced cold meats with a crisp parsley or watercress garnish, and a big bowl of salad on the side. What's even more important these wartime days, it's about the quickest and easiest supper any woman can prepare. And nutritious? Why the whole set-up is just bursting with body building proteins, vitamins and minerals. So take my tip, from now on plan to serve a "Summer Supper" at least once a week. For a little variety start with soup one time, and have a platter of steaming asparagus with hollandaise sauce the next. But make "Table-Ready Meats" the main course at least once a week.

British House of Commons Looks Into Servant Problem

LONDON, May 23—(CP)—The British House of Commons has come out in its stately chamber and said what a lot of people have been thinking about the servant problem.

The ministry of labor was told by members that some English families retained retinues of servants while others, elderly people unable to look after themselves, mothers with large families, had none. And one thing, it was said, should be done about it.

The case of a millionaire (in pounds, not dollars) was quoted. He, it was said, was waited on by eight servants, garnered from the black market at wages few other employers could meet.

Another member said: "A tremendous racket is going on among aliens. I have heard of country houses in which a veritable swarm of Hungarians wait on tables and look after the domestic requirements of the house."

ADVERTISEMENTS

Advertisements were read from London newspaper help wanted columns, asking for such as:

"Assistant butler wanted, first class butler kept . . . family of two."

"Useful woman for London and country houses, other full staff kept including first class cook."

"Cook required, two adults in family, three staff with half for rough work."

Then members jerked tears with tales of bedridden people without any help, prominent doctors, scientists and others unable to limit their professional duties in order to do their own domestic work.

It was announced then, by the ministry of labor, that an enquiry is being made into the wages and working conditions of domestic servants but probably no results would be felt until the end of the war while one member suggested those people who have a servant, should share said servant.

SAFEWAY Homemakers' Guide

Julia gives Her favorite sandwich ideas

Youngsters need lots of energy-building foods

SANDWICHES have so many uses, these days—and they're used so often—sometimes it's a problem to make them interesting and appetizing. I'm a constant sandwich-maker, myself. And over a period of time I've developed quite a set of favorite ideas. I've jotted down some of them here:

Generally speaking, I think it's important to vary the kinds of bread used and to cut the sandwiches in different ways. It's appetizing to see even the same old sandwich look different, for a change.

FILLINGS

There's hardly any limit to the number of tasty and nutritious sandwich fillings, as witness these few stories:

Grind hard cheese and mix it with salad dressing (this "extends" the cheese, incidentally).

Mix fruit preserves with cream cheese.

Put peanut butter and jelly or left-over cake frosting between graham crackers.

Grind equal amount of raw carrots and salted peanuts together, and moisten well with salad dressing.

Put peanuts or walnut meats on lettuce, cover with salad dressing, and add a top layer of lettuce.

Mix ground meat with salad dressing for a binder, make sandwich, dip whole sandwich in egg, fry in heavy pan.

Mash baked beans and mix with pickles or sliced onions and catsup.

Majority of Hogs For British Bacon Already Acquired

OTTAWA, May 23—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said yesterday in the Commons that about 78 per cent. of the hogs required for the 500,000,000-pound bacon contract with the United Kingdom in the present year already have been bought. (The agreement calls for a minimum delivery of 500,000,000 pounds, but officials said it was probable actual shipments would be considerably higher as it is expected the United Kingdom will purchase additional quantities above the minimum.)

Winnipeg Rye Market Weak

WINNIPEG, May 23 — (CP) — Good rains in the prairie provinces imparted weakness to the rye market today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Futures, which closed 3¾-3⅞ lower, declined as much as four cents at times. May rye finished at $1.11¾, July $1.11⅛-½ and October $1.10½.

Liberal liquidation by local longs and stop loss orders were reported by market observers.

United Kingdom interests purchased 150,000 bushels of Nos. 1 and 2 Northern wheat during the day and eastern domestic feeding interests 150,000 bushels of oats.

The council of the exchange announced that markets would be closed tomorrow in observance of Victoria Day.

Wheat Dominates Chicago Trading

CHICAGO, May 23—(AP)—Wheat reasserted its dominance as the market leader today, uncovering a bearish sentiment that eased prices rapidly into seasonal lows for the bread cereal. The downward movement spread to all grains with the greatest sympathy shown by rye.

Liquidation at one time sent July wheat contracts down more than three cents, the lowest since December. The approach of harvest in the southwest and some evidence that farmers may sell surplus grain added to the movement. Favorable crop conditions continued and some new wheat was said to have been offered below the ceilings.

At the close, wheat was 2-3 cents lower. Oats were ⅛-⅝ lower. Rye was 2½-3½ lower. Barley was ⅛-1½ lower.

After Operations

Reports of Airmen Vitally Important

By FRANK FLAHERTY

A CANADIAN BOMBER STATION, May 23.—(CP)—For the R.C.A.F. bomber group every operation is an experiment. The airmen who fly on the bombing raids are not out of school in the small hours of the morning until they tell all they have seen and heard while over the target, on the way there and on the way home.

Out of what the boys report is built up a picture of the raid, of enemy defences in the area, of the performance of planes and crews which contains its lessons for future raids.

Members of a party of Canadian newspapermen who visited the group recently sat in on the interrogation of crews just returned from hitting an important marshalling yard in Belgium and one of the key points in Hitler's western European communications system.

MEN SERVED TEA

The crews back from the raid trail into a large bare room and help themselves to tea which was set out for them. After a little chatting they group themselves around the intelligence officers who have forms ready with set questions to be answered.

The pilot, the navigator, the bomb aimer, the flight engineer, the gunners, the wireless operator together tell the story of their trip. Some members of a crew have seen more than others in the same crew. Some crews over the same target about the same time have seen more than other crews.

It is not a cross-examination. The boys just tell their own stories and they are written down. Later one will be checked with another and out of all the bomber group, intelligence people will draw conclusions which will influence future operations and future trainings.

Berlin Claims Bomber Attack On Portsmouth

By ROBERT DOWSON

LONDON, May 23—German "spy" planes again searched the British coasts for invasion secrets during the night and a Nazi broadcast said the main force attacked Portsmouth, one of the principal ports at which the enemy has claimed Allied ships and troops were massing for the opening of a western front.

Bombs were dropped both along the south coast and in East Anglia, lying opposite the French, Belgian and Dutch invasion coasts. German planes also were over parts of East Scotland, from which they Germans believe an invasion of Denmark or Norway may be launched.

About 100 German planes took part in attacks on south coast districts and parts of East Anglia. A small number of persons were killed in a coast town. Altogether six raiders were shot down during the night.

TRANSPORT CUT

British travellers, meantime, were discovering that the transport ministry meant just what it said when it announced that trains henceforth were liable to be cancelled without notice because of military traffic. Five long-distance trains from Paddington station in London were cancelled in two hours yesterday.

The Germans also were reported rushing their own preparations to meet the invasion. A neutral diplomat who has just arrived in Portugal told newsmen at Lisbon that the Germans were in the midst of large-scale troop movements in France.

Throughout France, the diplomat said, he saw trains full of troops "moving in all directions."

Rain Improving Crop Prospects

WINNIPEG, May 23—(CP)—Crop prospects were brightened in the prairie provinces today following good rains in most of Alberta and in sections of Saskatchewan and Manitoba during the last 24 hours. The forecast was for showers in all three provinces.

Edmonton district received a steady downpour all day yesterday and last night while in southern Alberta skies cleared some what after heavy showers.

McMurray, Alta., with .91 inch reported the highest precipitation in the west. Calgary recorded three-quarters of an inch. A two-hour downpour in Regina last night measured almost an inch and halted traffic when two subways were flooded. Saskatoon and a large area surrounding it enjoyed a heavy fall.

The rain extended into western Manitoba with Boissevain and Pierson receiving more than half an inch.

East Front Lull May End Shortly

LONDON, May 23—(CP)—Small-scale German reconnaissance attacks in the area of Tiraspol in the lower Dneiste river valley were reported today by Moscow as a lull continued along the rest of the long eastern front—a lull which military commentators on both sides again predicted would end soon.

A German commentator, Ernest Von Hammer, declared in a Berlin broadcast that major Soviet offensives "are imminent" in the lower Dnestr and middle Siret sectors.

A Soviet military commentator, Col. P. P. Voronin predicted a flare-up in land fighting soon.

Jailers at Coast Must Supervise Drugs to Addicts

VANCOUVER, May 23—(CP)—City jailers must supervise administration of narcotics to drug addicts in their custody, Chief Donald Mackay said yesterday after investigation into the case of Daniel Harrison, 28, who was taken to hospital Sunday night suffering from morphine poisoning.

Harrison, formerly of Edmonton, who is charged with murder in connection with the shooting of Clifford Lennox, 23, May 7, has been getting morphine tablets since his arrest.

Harrison was found in a stupor in his cell. Dr. K. D. Panton, police surgeon, said he believed the former hoarded his daily issue of drugs and administered them to himself in a "knockout" quantity.

Charles Venus, 13105 St. Albert Trail, 64-year-old worker for the Barber Construction Company, at Dunvegan Yards, was admitted to Royal Alexandra hospital about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday, suffering from a slight foot injury. The accident occurred while he was at his work when a falling piece of material landed on his foot.

Air-Borne Troops Landed on Wakde

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, May 23—(AP)—Carrier planes began landing on the Wakde airstrip on the north coast of Netherlands New Guinea 48 hours after United States 6th Army troops drove ashore Thursday to establish an airbase 110 miles closer to the Philippines from conquered Hollandia.

Allied headquarters, announcing today that the Wakde airdrome is in operation, said that although the American forces had little difficulty wiping out the Japanese there, they were running into stubborn opposition on the mainland nearby in their drive toward Maffin Bay and Sarmi, each of which has an airstrip.

The enemy's accurately-placed mortar fire was impeding the Americans attempting to expand their Tor river bridgehead, he said, but Allied heavy artillery wheeled up behind the lines was breaking up enemy positions.

Edmonton Airman Returns to City

WO. L. A. Caddel, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Caddel of 10348 124 street has returned to the city after more than two years overseas with the R.C.A.F.

An air gunner, WO. Caddel received burns in a plane crash and spent almost two years in hospital in England. He has the highest praise for work being done by medical authorities, particularly in skin grafting cases.

He was accompanied by his wife, whom he married recently in England.

Strikes Threaten Lumber Industry In U.S. Northwest

SEATTLE, May 23—(AP)—The great Pacific northwest lumber industry faced a complete shutdown last night with thousands of workmen already idle and at least 40 mills, loaded with war orders, were closed.

Nearly all the walkouts were described by union leaders as wildcat strikes in protest of the War Labor board's denial of wage increases.

The shutdown was spreading almost hourly at a rapidly accelerating rate.

An estimated 13,000 to 15,000 workers were idle in the Puget Sound, Gray's Harbor and Portland, Ore., districts.

Threat to Assam-Bengal Railway Lifted by British

By WALTER LOGAN

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

KANDY, Ceylon, May 23.—Heavy fighting was in progress south of Imphal where British and Indian forces were attacking Japanese positions around Moirang and Bishenpur, it was announced today.

The official weekly Burma Review issued in Kandy said the Japanese threat to the Brahmaputra valley and the Assam-Bengal railway has been removed by the British counter-offensive around Imphal and Kohima.

The Review said the Japanese in the latter area were entirely on the defensive and trying only to prevent a British thrust southward to Imphal.

The Review estimated that about 7,600 Japanese have been killed in the Imphal-Kohima fighting, and other sources indicated the remaining enemy forces have little prospect of escapting back across the Burma frontier.

BITTER FIGHTING

Meanwhile bitter house-to-house fighting for Myitkyina, Japanese base in northern Burma continued for the fifth straight day and official reports acknowledged that driving rainstorms and fierce Japanese resistance had prevented the attacking Allied troops from expanding their positions inside the city.

Simultaneously, it was disclosed that Chinese forces driving on Burma from western China had cut the old Burma road at Chefang, 50 miles west of the Salween river and 16 miles north of the Burma-China border on the highway to Lashio.

Escaped Prisoners Enter Switzerland

ZURICH, May 23—Nearly all the several thousand Indian prisoners who escaped from a German prison camp near Epinal in France in the confusion caused by a recent R.A.F. raid have reached Switzerland.

Hundreds of them hid in the woods near the Franco-Swiss frontiers awaiting the opportunity to cross into neutral territory and the chance came during a heavy storm Saturday night. Special trains had to be run to convey the escapees into the interior of Switzerland.

German civilians are also fleeing across the frontier. The majority of the inhabitants of the German village of Neuweiler, near Basle, are already on Swiss territory.

It was believed in London that there were about 3,000 Indian prisoners of war at Epinal camp. The total number of Indian prisoners of war in German hands is 12,000.

Eastern Command Fighters Destroy 213 Nippon Planes

KANDY, Ceylon, May 23.—(CP)—Eastern air command fighters of the 3rd tactical air force destroyed 213 Japanese aircraft in the last 10 weeks, it was announced today. Thirty-one enemy planes probably were destroyed and 38 were damaged.

The enemy aircraft were destroyed in Allied attacks on Japanese airfields in Burma, vitally needed by the enemy to support his troops in Manipur and to harrass Chindits astride his Myitkyina and Mandalay communications lines.

Premiers Curtin, Fraser Expected In Canada Soon

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King said yesterday in the Commons that Prime Minister John Curtin of Australia may be in Canada "very soon," and Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand immediately afterwards.

Mr. King said that at London where they attended the Empire prime ministers' conference with him, both Mr. Curtin and Mr. Fraser had said they looked forward to Canadian visits.

The dates of their arrivals were not certain, he said. They might be in Canada within a few days or weeks.

Field Marshal Jan Christiaan Smuts, prime minister of South Africa, was returning home directly and would not be in Canada.

Will Rogers' Body Returned to Home After Nine Years

CLAREMORE, Okla., May 23.—(AP)—Nine years after his tragic death in an Alaska plane crash, the body of Will Rogers was brought home last night and buried on a breeze-raked hillside overlooking the cattle ranges of his boyhood.

After a brief, secret ceremony, the casket transported from the Glendale, Calif., cemetery was lowered into a stone crypt on the gently sloping terrace beside the Will Rogers memorial museum.

Return of the humorist's body to Oklahoma was a goal toward which his friends had worked since his death in 1935.

Progress Made In Health Dept. Building Work

Construction work is now under way at three institutions operated by the provincial department of health, it was learned Tuesday from Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, department minister. The institutions are the Oliver Mental Hospital, the Keith Sanatarium and the Red Deer Training School.

At Oliver, work has been started on the building of a farm dormitory, to cost $138,000. The building is being put up half-way between the main hospital installations and farm buildings, and is to accommodate some 75 patients engaged in farm work on the institution's 1,600 acres of land.

At Keith, where the Central Alberta Sanatarium is located, construction of a $75,000 addition is reaching final stages. The new structure will house 50 extra TB patients.

ALTER BUILDING

An administration building at Keith is being altered to serve as a unit for surgical cases, and this work is expected to rest in the neighborhood of $25,000.

Additions to the Provincial Training School at Red Deer will provide for 60 more patients, and good progress is being made on this work, Dr. Cross stated. This construction is to cost $16,500.

Premier Aberhart Died One Year Ago

One year ago today, May 23, 1943, Premier William Aberhart, leader of the world's first Social Credit government, died in hospital at Vancouver.

Mr. Aberhart, whose health had been failing since the 1943 session of the Legislature, left for the coast at Easter, entered hospital sometime later, where he died of a liver ailment.

He was buried at Vancouver, with one of the largest funerals ever seen in that city. Cabinet ministers and M.L.A.'s attended the service, which was followed by a memorial service in McDougall United church here on May 30.

"Eyer and Eyer"

EYE, Suffolk, May 23.—(CP)—In a news story that proclaims, "The birthrate in Eye is getting 'eyer and 'eyer," a publication states that here, in Britain's smallest borough (population 1,733) the birthrate has increased 1,000 per cent. The lone registrar, N. Billings, complained he was forced to work day and night to keep up with the work. In 1939 only 13 babies were born in Eye but by 1943 it had jumped to 150, while 61 births were registered in the first 14 weeks of 1944.

Ceiling Prices On Berries Cut For This Year

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—The Prices Board announced today that price ceilings have been established for Canadian-grown strawberries and raspberries at a level which is below maximum prices paid by consumers last year but higher than 1942 prices.

It will be the first time these berries have been placed under a ceiling. Price schedules were not given.

The ceiling prices will apply from May 29 to Sept. 30, with seasonal reductions in strawberry prices to conform with the usual market drop when picking is at the peak. The order also applies to strawberries and raspberries from June 5 to Sept. 30, and puts them under the same ceiling as Canadian-grown berries in that period.

In the price schedules, Western Canada is in Zone 3.

HIGHEST IN ZONE 3

Highest prices for strawberries prevail in Zone 3 up to June 17. After this date the price to the consumer is considerably reduced. Ceiling prices for raspberries remain the same for the whole season.

Berry-growers may sell direct to consumers or to retailers at prices set out for each class of buyer.

Growers' and shippers' maximum prices are f.o.b. shipping point, with free delivery within an area of 15 miles from the shipping point. Where a seller transports the berries to a buyer in a centre more than 15 miles from his farm or shipping point, the seller can charge the cost of such transportation. But this charge must not exceed the less than carload express rate.

Wholesale and retail mark-ups are listed in cents per quart or per pint.

Gen. Clark Watches Fifth Army Open Greatest Attack at Anzio

By DANIEL DE LUCE

ANZIO BEACHHEAD, Italy, May 23.—(AP)—Allied tanks and infantry smashed today at the smoke-shrouded German line guarding the Appian Way to Rome in the greatest Allied attack from the beachhead since the Allies landed Jan. 22.

Under the eyes of Lt.-Gen. Mark W. Clark, Fifth Army commander, thousands of infantrymen and hundreds of armored vehicles began the attack at 6:30 a.m. after massed artillery had loosed a half hour barrage and light bombers had rained explosives on the forward enemy positions.

Supported by the fire of warships offshore, British Tommies stormed into German positions along Moletta Creek in simultaneous action on the northwestern extremity of the beachhead.

NAZIS FEARED BLOW

This was the blow the enemy had feared nightly since Gen. Sir Harold Alexander launched his offensive, May 11, in the south. The Fifth Army struck an hour after dawn, savagely in the direction of Cisterna, 2,500 yards distant, and the Alban hills close behind.

Trained especially with tanks for the last month, the troops swarmed across the flat, green no-man's land in the wake of Sherman tanks, their guns blasting into German foxholes and weapon pits at point blank range.

A wide belt of mines protected the approaches to the enemy's strongpoints. The Germans had dug at least three defence lines south of Cisterna.

PLANES HIT ENEMY

Despite scattered clouds and low haze which combined with smoke from guns and chemical machines to reduce the visibility to less than a mile, Allied planes flew in at almost strafing level to bomb the entrenched enemy.

I watched the battle begin from a hillside-covered knoll which was hit twice by German artillery.

At midnight, infantry of the first wave had gone into final position from the assembly areas.

With panic and frequency, the Germans during the hours of darkness sent up blue and yellow flares. Machine guns splattered from each side of the circular front.

USE HEAVY GUNS

Deep on the left flank in the brush-covered ravines near Campo Di Carne, British infantry raiders fought from 10:30 p.m. last night until dawn, after jumping off with a barrage of 2,200 shells.

With heavier guns than ever before used in the beachhead, a huge concentration of Allied artillery reared a prelude to the major battle at 5:45 a.m.

You could hear birds singing and crickets licking in the weeds of the abandoned farms as the guns paused briefly and as new Allied squadrons droned in from the coast. Before their bombs dropped, the clatter of war rose again. Thick in the dust, a mile-long tank column appeared over the ridge and clanked ahead to a dispersal field close to our old outpost line.

Jottings From Parliament

OTTAWA, May 23.—(CP)—Finance Minister Ilsley said yesterday in the Commons that the Canadian government has not been consulted in regard to the world monetary conference proposed by President Roosevelt. He was answering questions from Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative house leader.

Mr. Graydon said the proposed conference would study plans for stabilization of international finance and promotion of post-twar world prosperity.

Saying the government had not been consulted about such a conference, Mr. Ilsley added: "We do not know whether such a conference is to be called."

Loans made by the government under the Municipal Improvements Assistance Act totalled $6,839,693 at May 19, the finance department said in reply to questions by A. H. Bence (P.C., Saskatoon City).

Gas Asphyxiates 2 Well - Drillers

Two men, overcome by gas in a well they were digging in the Vermilion district, died Sunday, according to word reaching R.C.M.P. headquarters here. The dead men were Rene DeBreville, a widower, and Raymond Roy Thomas, a bachelor.

They were said to have been drilling a well for a farmer named Roger Watt, and had decided to work Sunday. Thomas, a well-driller by trade, had gone into the well to work, and while there was overcome by gas.

DeBreville, a farmer, tried to save his companion, but lost his own life in the attempt.

R.C.M.P. at Vermilion began an investigation and after a coroner's examination an inquest was thought to be unlikely.

Both men had relatives in the district.

Alaska Highway Attraction For Summer Travel

Interviewed on his return from the Pacific Northwest Tourist Association meeting held in Spokane May 17, Alfred Blyth of Edmonton, a convention delegate, said that the opinion of those attending the convention was that with the new Alaska Highway in the minds of the tourists, after the war the amount of summer travel will be to the northwest.

"We must provide real up to date accommodation for the tourist as he refuses to live in second rate cabins. We would suggest that as soon as materials are available, auto camp owners do all in their power to improve the facilities they have for tourist trade," he said.

Dan Campbell, director of publicity for the government of Alberta gave the convention a graphic picture of the arrangements being made in Alberta for post war travel by air lines into the game and fishing sports of the province.

Delegates to the convention were welcomed by President Paton of the Spokane Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Blyth pointed out that "in the northwest we have an inexhaustible reserve of beauty and that we should prepare for the return of men of the armed forces as they may find better conditions than they left."

Post-war plans of Los Angeles and Florida call for world fairs and it is up to the northwest to get in on the ground floor and get its share of tourist travel, delegates were told.

It was suggested at the meeting that west coast travel will not open up as much as inland and eastern travel, due to the war in the Pacific.

President

Harry E. "Red" Foster, President of Harry E. Foster Agencies, Limited, of Toronto. This organization has just been granted a franchise from the Canadian Daily Newspapers Association, and now plans to go even further into the general advertising field. Plans, long maturing, call for an immediate increase in the media department in order to handle the increasing volume of newspaper and periodical advertising. It is also expected that client requirements will soon necessitate the establishment of branch offices in centres other than Toronto.

Envoy Visions Continuation Of Friendship

The friendship and co-operation developed between Canada and Russia during the present conflict will be carried into the post-war period, in the opinion of George M. Zarubin, Russian ambassador to Canada, who arrived in Edmonton Monday in the course of an airplane flight from Moscow to Ottawa.

He said that the Russian people were appreciative of the assistance given by Canada to Russia in the struggle against the Nazi invader, and added that the friendship formed and the co-operation that existed between the countries now will be carried into the post-war period to the great benefit of both nations.

Three years in Russia's diplomatic service, and prior to that engaged in the industrial development of his country, Mr. Zarubin is 44 years old.

While non-committal on the date of the opening of the second front Mr. Zarubin said that plans for that front have been set by the "three great men, Stalin, Roosevelt and Churchill, and the opening will take place when everything is in readiness."

He said that the Soviet faces a tremendous task of reconstruction in the post-war period. Work on the reconstruction of the liberated areas has commenced, he added.

Accompanied by his wife, and 14-year-old son, Victor, Mr. Zarubin left Monday evening for Ottawa by airplane.

Mr. Zarubin said that probably Russia and Canada will have discussions on post-war air routes. He said that Russia, Britain and the United States have discussed post war air plans.

GOOD WEATHER

Commenting on his trip from Moscow he said that over Russian territory the weather was fine and flying conditions ideal. After arriving over American and Canadian areas the weather was not so good and the flying was rough.

He said that his son Victor would attend the school for Russian children at the embassy where from 10 to 12 children of officials are taught.

Says "Team Spirit" Shown by Premiers Was Extraordinary

LONDON, May 23.—(CP) — The "team spirit" which marked the recent meeting of Dominion prime ministers won praise here yesterday from Herbert Morrison, home secretary.

"If the Dominion prime ministers had been awkward, if anyone had been difficult or unco-operative," he said, "the whole thing might have been messed up.

"Instead the conference was the feeling that the British Commonwealth needed to march together. The degree of goodwill, good sense, enlightenment and co-operation the prime ministers showed was extraordinary."

Wilfred Lambert, 40-year-old miner of Coal Valley paid $150 and costs, when he appeared before Magistrate George H. Hill at Ocean Falls, B.C., May 16, on two charges of contravening national selective service regulations, according to Edmonton local officials.

Lambert, at his own request, was said to have been given a leave of absence not to exceed two weeks. Going to Vancouver, he stated to selective service officers he was an Alberta farmer and as such, was directed to take work at Pacific Mills, Ocean Falls. He did not bother returning to Coal Valley, nor did he secure a release from his earlier employment, officers stated.

Located at Ocean Falls by local authorities, he was charged there with terminating his employment with the Coal Valley coal mining company without a selective service permit, and also with making false representations in order to secure a permit enabling him to take other work.

The alternative of the fine was two months' imprisonment on each count. The fine was paid.

Canadian Navy To Take Share Invasion Duty

While Canada's navy is employed mainly in convoy duty there are a great many ships overseas that will take their full share in the invasion of Europe, Gordon Mills, Ottawa, deputy minister of naval affairs, stated on his arrival here Tuesday.

Making a tour of naval establishments in western Canada he is accompanied by Capt. A. K. Johnstone, member of the naval board and chief of naval equipment and supply, and Cmdr. R. L. Dunsmore, assistant director of plans. They conferred Tuesday morning with Lt.-Cmdr. J. A. Dawson, officer commanding H.M.C.S. Nonsuch, and later inspected the division headquarters and personnel.

He said that Edmonton along with other prairie divisions, has an excellent record, and it would be impossible to have a Canadian navy without inland support.

He said that Canada's sailors have made an excellent showing in this war, adding that it is the first time the navy has been particularly represented from coast to coast.

GOING WELL

The nation's shipbuilding program is going splendidly, he stated, and the second aircraft carrier has just been completed in a western ship building yard. This craft is manned by Canadian personnel except the fleet arm which is manned by Royal Navy personnel.

He will confer with executive officers of the Royal Canadian Sea Cadets during his visit. He paid tribute to the excellent work being done by the Navy League of Canada in fostering the cadet movement, and added that his minister, Hon. Angus Macdonald takes the keenest interest in the sea cadets.

The party will leave Edmonton late on Tuesday for Saskatoon.

Ansley Speaks S.C. Meeting Monday Night

The question of monetary reform is now becoming one of secondary importance, R. Earl Ansley, Social Credit M.L.A. for Leduc and chairman of the Alberta Social Credit Board, declared at a meeting of Edmonton Social Credit Constituency Association, held in the Social Credit Hall, 9974 Jasper avenue, Monday evening.

Mr. Ansley said preparations are being made for the implementation of various international controls which could be used to keep the people in world slavery, despite internal financial changes. "These will have to be prevented if we are to retain our democratic freedom and sovereignty," he warned.

Speaking on "The Fundamental Problem," Mr. Ansley declared nothing has yet been done to prevent the worst depression of history to follow the close of this war. Politicians of the extreme right and extreme left are saying, 'full employment for all and prosperity will be provided,' but unfortunately, they fail to realize there is a fundamental difference between a peace economy and a war economy.

Illustrating his address by means of a chart, the speaker said that at the present time, Canadians are fully occupied, and are receiving purchasing power from three distinct sources: economic production, war factories and payments to the armed services and their dependents.

This aggregate purchasing power is now about sufficient to meet the prices of consumable goods appearing on the consumers' market, said Mr. Ansley.

BUYING POWER

"At the moment we return to a peacetime economy, the purchasing power of the community will again be limited to that distributed in the course of economic production only," he told listeners.

"Thus we will again return to a state of chronic shortage of buying power," the S.C. board chairman declared. He went on to show that Social Credit proposals were the only ones being offered to cope with this problem.

J. B. Gillies, association vice-president, was in the chair at the meeting, which was attended by some 150 persons.

David Duncan, president, called for a standing tribute in memory of Premier William Aberhart, who died at Vancouver on May 23, 1943.

N.Z. Commissioner Is Visiting the City

Hon. David Wilson, New Zealand high commissioner to Canada, arrived here Tuesday morning aboard a R.C.A.F. plane, accompanied by Group Captain "Tiny" White, air liaison officer.

Mr. Wilson spent the morning visiting New Zealand airmen at No. 2 A.O.S. and No. 3 "M" Depot.

He brought greetings from home to the men and told them what briefly was going on in their country. The men heard with interest the details of his trip from New Zealand to the United States and then on to Canada.

At No. 2 A.O.S. Mr. Wilson toured the school, visiting the hospital and station swimming pool.

At noon Tuesday he was guest of honor at a Chamber of Commerce council luncheon meeting in The Corona hotel.

It was expected he would confer with Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen, Premier Ernest Manning and Mayor John Fry Tuesday afternoon.

City Commences Population Count

Whether or not Edmonton has maintained its population of 105,623 will be determined about the end of June.

Census takers started Tuesday on the annual counting of heads in the city, it was announced by Thomas Walker, city assessor, who has charge of the annual census. The approximate cost of taking the census is $3,200. He said that 21 canvassers had started on the work and that this number would be increased to 30 before the end of this week. He appealed to residents to expedite the work of the census takers as much as possible.

Before the Magistrate

John Thomas Powers, of no fixed abode, who gave his age to authorities at Sarnia, Ont., as 17 years, when he was 22, and who failed to notify the divisional registrar of his change of address, was fined $50 or three months for giving false information, and an additional $20 or 30 days for failure to observe national selective service regulations, when he appeared before Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C. in police court Monday afternoon. The terms were ordered to run consecutively.

• • •

Breaches of the motor vehicle act earned penalties for Peter Skrypnuk and Michael Holliday of Edmonton. Charged with fast driving, the former was assessed $15 or 21 days; the latter, pleading guilty to carrying more passengers in the cab of a truck than could be comfortably accommodated, was fined $10 or 14 days.

Clifford King, who pleaded guilty to stealing two head of cattle from the stockyards of one packing house in Edmonton, and selling them to another, also to stealing a heifer from a private citizen, and failing to submit himself for examination as a selective service registrant, told Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C. Tuesday morning, that, to the best of his knowledge, he was only 19 years old. A brother previously had said the accused was 22, the magistrate was told.

The case was adjourned until Friday when Mr. Millar informed the accused that he was not telling the truth, since the latter had already stated having registered in 1940, at which time he claimed to be only 17.

King, accompanied by a youth, allegedly took two head of cattle from a city packing plant last October. After being tied in some bush all night, the animals were loaded into a truck, taken to another packing plant, and there offered them for sale for $177.62. Later, accompanied by the same youth and another, the accused took a heifer valued at $40 from a man. This animal also spent a night tied in a bush.

Police officers saw the trio during an investigation. The accused saw the officers coming and fled, only to be taken into custody later.

King offered no explanation for his failure to report for medical examination, but expressed, through counsel, his desire to enlist. Further investigations are being made.

There had been trouble in the Walter Pastuch home over a hen, but Walter could not find it. When he did locate it, he accused his wife of hiding it, and proceeded to use it on her. Pastuch, pleading guilty to assault occasioning actual bodily harm, said his wife had picked up an iron and while he had intended hitting her on the hand with hammer, the blow fell on her forehead. She was rendered to three months with hard labor.

Bill Shulnic, who climbed a fence to see "what sort of work was done" at the American air base, told the magistrate he had wanted to see the world and was just wandering around. It sometimes pays not be too inquisitive, replied Mr. Millar, as he fined Bill $15 or 21 days.

Pauline Ewasiuk pleaded guilty to theft of a gabardine coat and a purse from a departmental store Monday afternoon, and was fined $10 or 14 days.

Three men were charged with driving their autos at unreasonable speed. They were William Norman and Jim Service, each of whom was fined $15 or 21 days, and Irvine Bacsus, who was assessed $20 or 30 days.

William Clark pleaded not guilty to a breach of national selective service regulations, and had his case remanded until Friday after the hearing of evidence of five officers of the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

Loan Chairman Lauds Effort By Albertans

Tribute to the efficient organization of the 128 Sixth Victory Loan units, the thousands of individuals and organizations who worked voluntarily in the loan campaign, and to the thousands of citizens who purchased bonds was voiced Tuesday by F. E. Osborne, Calgary, chairman, National War Finance Committee for Alberta.

The following is the text of a statement issued by Mr. Osborne:

The success of the Sixth Victory Loan campaign in Alberta, standing on Monday evening, May 22, at $46,241,850, with the official objective $37,000,000, is very gratifying to National War Finance headquarters. Particularly is it so when it is clear, with large corporations and business firms purchasing slightly more than $13,000,000 worth, general canvass and payroll purchasers bought over $33,000,000 worth.

WERE OUTSTANDING

Of this amount, purchases by the three armed forces were outstanding. Such wide distribution of Canada's war bonds can only be most beneficial to all parties to the contract. The fine results obtained during this loan are due to efficient organizations in 128 units comprising the province, to thousands of individuals and organizations who voluntarily gave of their time and ability to assist in this financial aspect of our country's war effort, and to thousands of our citizens (155,586 to be exact) who purchased these bonds as a patriotic duty, as a hedge against inflation and as a fine investment.

GRATEFUL THANKS

To all such, the Alberta National War Finance Committee extends its grateful thanks, as well as the appreciation of Mr. Graham F. Towers, general chairman for Canada, expressed in a wire received this week. Undoubtedly there will be further loans from time to time —they present no cause for concern as long as Albertans recognize their responsibility and opportunity as they have done in the campaign just closed. In the meantime, Albertans can continue to support Canada's war effort by systematic purchases of War Savings Stamps and Certificates.

Fire Department Probes 41 Fires

Fire Chief James Macgregor reported that of the 41 fires in the city serious enough to be investigated by the fire department during April, nine were in buildings which had caught fire previously. Six others were caused by chimney fires.

All apartment houses and blocks are being inspected, and wherever there is fire hazard the owners are requested to correct the situation. Special attention is being given to apartments in basements and attics.

During the month, 236 premises were inspected and 31 complaints dealt with.

The fire department's prevention branch also carried on official government's fire commissioner's office conducted an inspection of all United States properties in the city. This action was taken at the request of the United States government.

Mayor Searching For More Housing

Back from New York where he successfully piloted through the refinancing of $5,000,000 of debentures, Mayor John W. Fry immediately tackled the problem of finding alternative accommodation for persons who are facing eviction from their homes.

In company with Commissioner R. J. Gibb he visited the United States Camp 550, and huts located at 110 street and 108 avenue.

After the inspection he issued a call to executive members of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and the Canadian Legion to attend a conference at his office Tuesday afternoon, at which alternative housing would be discussed.

Mayor Fry said that while at Ottawa he discussed the housing situation here with government officials.
